WOMAN'S BODY IN SEA COVE

PORTSMOUTH, Sept. 23.—The discovery of the body of a well dressed, good looking woman, on the beach in Becker's Cove, near Fort Constitution, today, gave the police and county authorities a mystery which they said might develop into a case of foul play. On the woman's forehead, Medical Referee Willis D. Walker found marks which might have been caused by a blow. The police at once started an investigation.

According to the medical examiner, the woman, who was between twenty-five and twenty-eight years old, had been in the water for only five or six hours. This caused the police to think she might have met her death early today. The only report the medical examiner would give out until he performs an autopsy was that the woman had died by drowning. Whether it was suicide or murder he would not say.

Ring Only Clew.

The only clew found to the identity of the woman was a ring, a plain gold band, which may or may not have been a wedding ring, on the left hand. Inside were engraved the initials and date: "H. F. S. to L. H. H. December 9, 1899."

The body was found by Benjamin Ricker of the Wood Island life saving station, who was off duty at the time. He reported the matter to the police and county officials. Sheriff's Spinney and Shaw, first on the scene, with their deputies, hunted the vicinity to see if persons could be found who knew of a missing woman or who had heard cries during the night.

The marks on the forehead, in the opinion of the sheriffs, might have been caused had the woman jumped into the water to take her life.

They thought the woman had come to her death near the shore, which would account for the washing in of the body by the tide, if the medical examiner's finding is correct that the woman had been in the water but a few hours.

Her Description.

The woman was full-faced, of light complexion, with dishevelled light brown hair. The police thought the fact that the hair was not done up was a significant point. She had on a long black coat and black skirt, black petticoat and black shoes and stockings. Her waist was of nile green material with a dark stripe. The only thing found in her pockets was a white handkerchief.

The body was taken to the undertaking rooms of Oliver W. Ham on Market street.

DAYLIGHT ROBBERY IN NEW YORK STREET

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Automobile bandits again became active in New York today when two well-dressed men, ignoring the presence of a nearby policeman, blackjacked John Pepper, a merchant at Ninth avenue and Seventeenth street, then sped away in a motor car with $1,981. Pepper was on his way from his office at No. 411 West Seventeenth street to make a deposit in the bank when he was held up in the crowded street.

AMERICANS ARE IN DANGER IN FOO CHOW

FOO CHOW, China, Sept. 23.—Many Americans in this city are in danger of their lives because of an incipient revolt started by the chief of police, who has deified the authority of the Central government and has threatened to destroy the city in case he is attacked. A large force of government soldiers has been dispatched from Pekin to Foo Chow. Sharp fighting is anticipated within a short time and all foreigners have been warned to gather within their own legations.

JUMPS TO DEATH AS CAMERAS CLICK

BERLIN, Sept. 23.—In the presence of thousands of spectators, a man named Boettner committed suicide in Berlin because of a love affair. He had entered into a contract with a group of film companies to jump from the top of the famous "Column of Victory" in the Tiergarten. The structure is 245 feet high and is composed partially of cannon captured in Germany's wars. Equipped with a faulty parachute, he jumped from the top.

AMATEUR FLIER KILLED.

BERLIN, Sept. 23.—An amateur parachute jumper named Bittner climbed to the summit of the Column of Victory to experiment with a self-invented apparatus. The parachute failed and Bittner was dashed to pieces.

GERTRUDE O'BRIEN, LYNN GIRL ROBBED OF 9-INCH BRAID

The Lynn police today searched for the most daring "Jack the Ripper" that city has ever known. In broad daylight, in Central square, the busiest place in Lynn, Gertrude O'Brien, fourteen years old, living at No. 42 Washington street, Lynn, lost both braids of her hair when an unidentified person cut them off with a sharp instrument.

Miss O'Brien was waiting for a Peabody car with two girl companions, yesterday afternoon. Hundreds of people were passing. A few minutes later, when the young girl victim was about to board the electric car, her two friends noticed one of her braids was missing and the other was hanging by a few strands. The missing braid was nine inches long.

"Oh, Gertie, what's happened to your hair?" they asked.

Miss O'Brien felt for her braids. She told Patrolman Crowley of the incident but there was absolutely no clew. The police say they believe the cutting had been done with a razor.

The Pilgrims have won the only game played with the Reds on this trip and were anxious to make it two straight.

KANSAS CITY BALL PARK IS DESTROYED

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 23.—Association Park, the home of Kansas City's baseball team, was destroyed last night. The plant of the City Ice and Storage Company and two residences were destroyed. The total loss was $100,000, of which $60,000 was sustained by the ice company, $20,000 by George Tehan, owner of the park, and $20,000 by the owners of the residences.

TRY HYDE AT EXTRA SESSION OF COURT

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Charles H. Hyde, formerly city chamberlain, indicted on bribery charges growing out of the Northern Bank scandal, will be tried by Supreme Court Justice Goff in the extraordinary term of court ordered by Governor Dix, and as soon as the trial of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker is completed. This announcement was made today by District Attorney Whitman.

FIGHT FOR ETTOR IS OPENED

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The American embassy was flooded with postcards today, demanding release of Ettor and Giovannitti, the labor leaders in jail at Lawrence, Mass. The postcards were mailed on strength of suggestions by speakers at a monster meeting in Trafalgar square yesterday.

SALEM, Sept. 23.—Arguments were begun today before Judge Joseph F. Quinn at a special session of the Essex County Superior Court on a petition for a bill of particulars filed by James S. Sisk, counsel for Joseph Caruso, charged with the murder of Anna Le Pezzi during the Lawrence textile strike, and Joseph J. Ettor and Arturo Giovannitti, charged with being accessories to the murder.

Attorney Sisk demanded that the prosecution furnish to the defense a bill of particulars showing on what ground Ettor and Giovannitti are being held for trial next week. Caruso is not now and has never been in custody.

This was the opening of the fight, watched by the entire nation, to gain the freedom of the two men who have been in Lawrence jail since the middle of the Lawrence strike, last Winter. The court room was crowded. Ettor and Giovannitti were not in court.

John P. S. Mahoney represented Ettor, and W. Scott Peters, former District Attorney of Essex County, appeared for Giovannitti. George E. Roewer of Boston and Fred Moore of Los Angeles, Cal., were associated with the counsel for the defence.

District Attorney Henry S. Attwill appeared for the prosecution and argued against giving a bill of particulars to Ettor's and Giovannitti's counsel. The arguments took the greater part of the day.

The I. W. W. has made big preparations to defend the men. The fund now totals over $50,000, it is said, and more contributions are steadily being received, in addition, threats are made in industrial centres, of general strikes, as protests against the imprisonment and trial of the two leaders.

The government, likewise, has made careful preparations. Three hundred and fifty veniremen have been summoned from which a jury of twelve is to be picked.

The arguments were made by Judge James H. Sisk, associate justice of the Lynn police court, who represents Joseph Caruso, the alleged principal. Attorney John P. S. Mahoney of Lawrence, former District Attorney W. Scott Peters, both of whom represent Ettor and Giovannitti, and by District Attorney Henry C. Attwill, who opposed the granting of the bill of particulars.

Attorney Peters asked repeatedly:

"How can it harm the Commonwealth to give these men all the information that could possibly be given them upon this indictment on which they are to be tried for their lives?

"The indictment might stand the test of the law, and yet because of the feeling which we know wexists nothing should be left undone to give the defendants every opportunity to present their side of the case. Granting the bill of particulars would not be any concession to the counsel for the defence, but it would simply show that the government was giving another assurance that it was fair."

In the courtroom was a crowd of 150 persons. Among them were many women. A number were Italians. Many attorneys from this city and other cities in Essex County were present and took great interest in the proceedings.

W. F. FITZGERALD PINS ANANIAS CLUB CARD ON PELLETIER

W. F. Fitzgerald of the board of directors of the Port of Boston in a statement given out today in reply to District Attorney Pelletier, declared that he was not a stockholder in the East Boston Company. The District Attorney declared that Mr. Fitzgerald was a large stockholder in the company, which owns 47,000,000 feet of lands and flats in East Boston. Mr. Fitzgerald's reply follows:

"Mr. Pelletier's statement was not only an unqualified falsehood, but was made knowingly so. Neither my concern, my partners, myself nor my family have any interest directly or indirectly in the East Boston Company."

GREAT CROWD OUT TO WELCOME RED SOX HOME

ROOTERS' SONGS TO WELCOME RED SOX ON COMMON

ALL YOU NEW YORK BASEBALL FANS WILL BE IN MOURNING TONIGHT.

Words by Howard E. Johnson.
Music by Irving Berlin.

To the air of "Keep Away From the Fellow Who Owns an Automobile."

ALL you New York baseball fans
Will be in mourning tonight
'Cause you'll find out when the game is lost
You've been handed an awful bust.
When the Speed Boys start a-playing
On your knees you'll be praying
Just say good-bye forever, and bow to me.
There's no chance at all with Jake Stahl,
His Red Sox fan certain, the same last
All you New York fans
Will be in mourning tonight.

"TAKE A LITTLE TIP FROM FATHER."

Words by Howard Johnson. Music by Ted Snyder.

CHORUS.

TAKE a little tip from father
Take a little tip from Dad
See how the Red Sox are hitting the ball,
Tessen and Marquard are easy pickings,
Matty's wing is on a sling;
So let us cheer with ohs,
Just take a little tip from father—
Bet on our Boston team to win.

THE GRAND OLD GAME OF BASEBALL.

Words and music by Lawrence B. O'Connor.

NOW the Red Sox look like winners, they don't play like new beginners,
Their batting clips were marked with great consistency.
With one star, the great Tris Speaker, the Jake Stahl, the pennant-getter
And the fielder, Henry Hooper, Heinie Wagner
Joe Wood, and Yerkes, Carrigan, O'Brien,
Leon, Bradley Gardner, Hall—were born to play baseball.
Tip your hats to Garland Stahl—he's done for the grand old game of baseball.

CHORUS.

The grand old game of baseball.
Everybody knows it's going on its fame;
The grandest game of all.
Great, I say, it is just be a fan,
Even Abbey had him ready at the end.
Come with me, you'll agree that it's great to see
The grand old game of baseball.

WE'VE GOT TO WIN.

Words by Howard E. Johnson.
Music by Irving Berlin.

To the air of "Ragtime Soldier Man."

COME on you rooters, come on you boosters,
Come on and watch the Red Sox boys get busy.
They're going to do it, they're going to do it,
We'd like to see them score, a hundred runs or more.
Wild, wilder rooting, let's start a singing
Tell 'em that we're for them, tell 'em we're the cards,
Tell 'em that we're for them, Grandad,
We've got to win the game today.

CHORUS.

We've got to win, we've got to win,
The champions we're going to be;
We've got to win, we've got to win,
We've got to let you Giants see
That we've got it all over you, all
Old Jake Stahl, Buck O'Brien, Charlie Hall
And the rest of the boys are going to fight for victory.
Now, boys, be "there" you know
We Rooters' pledge is a heart
And New York fair will nearly choke
When the Red Sox get their team spirit
Then we'll carry them back to New York city,
We're going to do it, we're going to do it,
They're the best team in the land.

RUSSIAN STEAMER SUNK WITH LOSS OF OVER 100 LIVES

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 23.—The steamship Obnostka was sunk with the loss of 116 lives in collision with another steamer in the Dvina River today, according to a dispatch received here. There were 150 passengers on the Obnostka at the time. The vessels met in a fog and so quickly did the Obnostka settle that only thirty-five passengers and members of the crew were rescued.

ESCAPES IN TENDER AS GALATEA BURNS

"Bunty," a friend of Walter Delehanty, who owns the forty-foot sloop Galatea, escaped in the tender early today when fire broke out aboard the yacht, which was anchored off Jeffries Point. "Bunty," whose real name is not known, was the only person aboard the yacht. While going on deck from the galley, he slipped and fell, overturning and dropped a kerosene lamp. Instantly the little galley was in flames. Fireboat No. 47 extinguished the flames with a loss of some $400.

PARK MEN WILL PROTEST DISCHARGES

It was announced at the meeting of the Metropolitan Park Department Employes' Union that a number of men prominent in the recent general organizing work had been discharged or laid off. Lack of work was the reason assigned, it was stated. The belief of the union was, it was declared, that the organizing activities had something to do with the layoffs. They will protest to the Commissioners.

Mayor, the Sheriff and Thousands of Other Rooters Cheer Team.

Time—On arrival of train; due 3:55 p. m.

Route—Up Summer street to Washington, Washington street to School, School to Tremont street, Tremont street to Parkman bandstand, Boston Common, where Mayor Fitzgerald will welcome the players.

BAND AT THE STATION.

Led by a band, thousands of the loyal rooters thronged the South Station this afternoon and cheered and practiced their songs for the world's series.

The train was due at 3.55, an hour late, due to a wreck near Rochester.

The crowd began to assemble early. They came in autos and on foot; they brought streamers and flags.

Mayor Fitzgerald and Sheriff John Quinn were early arrivals at the station.

Summer and Federal streets were filled with men, women and children on their way to welcome home the first champion ball team Boston has had since 1901.

The small boy that sees about every championship game in the city from a fence or telegraph pole was on the job and worked himself by station attendants and policemen up to the very edge of track 12, where the baseball team was expected.

Practically every member of the team that cleaned up the American League was aboard the train. Even Larry Gardner, with bandaged hand, came along.

He will not play in the local series. His finger is badly damaged, and he will go to his Vermont home to rest for the world's series.

It's a case of everybody out to give the Red Sox a rousing greeting—one that will show Boston is proud of all its great

KILLED BY BIG DOOR OF VAULT

Dennis McDonald, forty years old, of Broadway, South Boston, was killed today when pinned beneath a heavy steel door of a big vault which laborers were removing at No. 28 State street.

The building was being demolished and McDonald was at work around the door of the safe which weighed several tons. In some way the door rolled from its sockets and fell on him, pinning him to the floor.

His cries attracted other workmen nearby and a big hoisting derrick was used in rescuing him. The derrick boom was hoisted up over the building and down over the door on the south. While the door was being lifted from the body of McDonald police officers crawled under the boom of the derrick and dragged the dying man out into the room.

He was taken to the Relief Station, but died in the ambulance. The body was sent to the North Grove street morgue and Medical Examiner Mcintosh notified. The police are trying to place the responsibility.

HEAR YOUNG TURKS REJECT PEACE TERMS

VIENNA, Sept. 23.—After the Turkish Council of Ministers had ratified the draft of the peace treaty drawn up in Geneva, the government decided to reject the protocol's terms, and is so preparing to notify the powers, according to a telegram from Constantinople. It is said that the change in attitude was brought about by Young Turks, who favor continuing the war.

RICE PLEADS IN DYNAMITE CASE

William H. Rice, East Milton quarryman, who was arrested as a result of a secret indictment returned by the special grand jury which probed the the Lawrence dynamite cases, was arraigned in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court today before Justice Ralston on a charge of illegally carrying dynamite through the streets January 10, last. It is alleged the dynamite was the same which was found "planted" in Lawrence during the strike last Winter.

Rice is accused of carrying the dynamite on a passenger car of the Boston Elevated in Boston. It became known today that this charge is contained in the second count of the indictment.

Rice pleaded not guilty, and was released in $5,000 bonds.

Rice who was the fourth man indicted in connection with the Lawrence dynamite cases, is said to have admitted that he furnished dynamite to Ernest W. Pitman, who committed suicide rather than testify before the Grand Jury about the "planting" of the explosive.

Rice asserts he thought Pitman was to use the dynamite legitimately, and that he did not have anything to do with the carrying of the dynamite through the streets.

The other three men already indicted in the cases are William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen Company; Frederick E. Attearn, a cemetery contractor of Boston, and Dennis J. Collins, a Cambridge dog fancier. Wood, Attearn and Collins are out on bail of $5,000 for alleged conspiracy and Collins is also bonded in $1,000 for the alleged transportation of the dynamite.

PRESIDENT TAFT BACK AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—President Taft arrived here from Beverly today at 10.55 a. m. The President was met at the train by Carmi Thompson, his private secretary, and went directly to the Continental Memorial Hall, where he officially opened the International Congress on Hygiene and Demography. After the reception to the health delegates the President is to receive the delegates to the National Conference of Catholic Charities.

KING ALFONSO'S SISTER IS DEAD

MADRID, Sept. 23.—Infanta Maria Teresa, sister of King Alfonso and wife of Prince Ferdinand of Bavaria, died today. A daughter was born to her on September 15 and she never regained her strength.

ALLEN AND EDWARDS BROUGHT INTO COURT

ROANOKE, Va., Sept. 23.—Handcuffed together and guarded by ten detectives, Sidna Allen and Wesley Edwards, arrested a week ago in Des Moines to answer for their part in the Carroll County Courthouse murders, were brought to Hillsville today, to be arraigned.

FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE.

Cures colds and throat and lung troubles.

TESSIE.

(From the Silver Slipper.)

Official song of the Red Sox Royal Rooters.

TESSIE is a maiden with a sparkling eye,
Tessie is a maiden with a laugh;
Tessie doesn't know the meaning of a sigh,
Tessie's lots of fun and full of chaff.
But sometimes we have a little quarrel, we two,
Tessie always turns her head away.
Then it's up to me to do as all boys do,
So I take her hand in mine and say:

CHORUS.

Tessie, you make me feel so badly,
Why don't you turn around.
Tessie, you know I love you madly;
Babe, my heart weighs about a pound.
Don't blame me if I ever double you,
You know I wouldn't live without you,
Tessie, you are the only, only, only.

CRISIS IN HUNT ON MOUNTAIN

BRETTON WOODS, N. H., Sept. 23.—At daybreak today over a hundred men and boys started out to make a final search of the wild slopes of Mount Washington, in an effort to solve the mystery of the fate of John M. Keenan of Charlestown, the young man lost last Thursday from a party of surveyors with whom he was working. Keenan had not been found up to noon.

In spite of the fact that the boy's own father, Lawrence J. Keenan, has gone home to Charlestown, his last hope for his son's life gone, the searchers today under the command of H. S. Jewell, chief engineer of the surveying party, were hopeful of finding the lad.

But if he is not located today, even the most optimistic must give up all idea of finding him alive. Already he has been exposed to the severe cold for over seventy-two hours. Only one man has ever before survived sixty hours without food or shelter on the mountainside.

Today, in the minds of the searchers, was the crucial day. They redoubled their efforts to find the lost boy.

The searching parties were all under the supervision of Jewell, and his assistant, R. H. Johnston of Boston, who has been especially active in directing his share of the search since Friday.

Of all the theories and clews, which have developed since Keenan's disappearance, only one seems now to have any value. This is the report of Mr. Briggs, tramping through the mountains, who appears to have seen Keenan Friday afternoon, near the Raymond path, on a part of the slope of Mt. Washington called Darby Field, a barren waste, covered with slabs and most difficult of access, and about two miles from the Glen House.

Mr. Briggs says he talked with Keenan and took him to the Pinkham Notch road where he directed him to the Glen House.

OFFERS $2,000 AT 2 TO 1 ODDS THAT GOV. FOSS WILL WIN

Robert G. Clark, an Endicott street stablekeeper, today offered odds of $2,000 to $1,000 that Governor Foss will be renominated tomorrow.

Clark and his brother, Edward P., have already wagered $10,000 at odds of 3 to 2 that the Governor will be returned a winner.

GARDNER WINS NEWPORT GIRL

George Peabody Gardner, Jr., Harvard 1910, who sprang into fame by his rendition of the character of "Mutt" in the Hasty Pudding show of this year, is engaged to Miss Ruth Grosvenor, daughter of Mrs. William Grosvenor of Newport, if rumor at the Rhode Island resort is reliable.

Mrs. Grosvenor is to be the hostess at an elaborate dinner tonight and Newport confidently expects the announcement to be made then. Mrs. Grosvenor, questioned, is silent as the Sphinx.

Gardner is secretary of the Harvard Corporation. He was in Newport yesterday, but must return to Cambridge this week for the university's opening. In college he won the intercollegiate tennis championship, captured first place in the hurdles in many track meets, and was a star hockey player.

Since his graduation he has played championship tennis at Longwood, with W. J. Clothier as his partner in doubles. At Harvard he was a member of many clubs and on the 1910 class day committee.

HARVARD HAS 750 FRESHMEN

The college freshman class numbered 750, larger than for some years, although not a record. Registration must be completed between 10 and 6 o'clock today.

The dining halls opened today and the Harvard Union was also open for inspection.

Numerous changes have been made in the dining halls. Randall Hall will not be open this year, but will be utilized as a storehouse for books which are being taken from Gore Hall, the library, in anticipation of the building of the new Widener Memorial library. In place of Randall Hall as a dining hall, Foxcroft Hall will be used.

The freshmen were conspicuous about the campus today by the big red cards that they were obliged to carry for identification.

The seniors had "blue" for their color, but they threw the cards to the winds as soon as they had registered as "blue" is not a favorite color at Cambridge.

Tomorrow night the freshmen and new students will be given a reception at Phillips Brooks house.

WOMAN HEROINE AT ROXBURY FIRE

Mrs. Arthur Swan was the heroine of a fire in the four story tenement at Nos. 29, 31 and 33 Eustis street, Roxbury, that drove the thirty inmates to the street in their night clothes, early today. Mrs. Swan made her way through the smoke filled halls and awakened the tenants so that all got out safely.

The fire is supposed to have been started by a tramp who dropped a spark from pipe or a cigarette in a pile of rubbish in the cellar. The loss was $500.

Mrs. Swan was awakened by the smoke. Her first cry of alarm awoke Mrs. John Scully whose son, Paul, ran to the fire station a little way down the street and gave the alarm, while Mrs. Swan awakened the other inmates.

By the time the firemen from Chemical No. 10 arrived, the inmates of the building were pouring down the front stairs. The back stairs were blocked by the thick smoke.

As soon as Scully had summoned aid, he ran back to the house and dashed up stairs to the second floor, where he knew Patrick Galvin lived with his son, Michael. With the assistance of the younger man he got Galvin out of bed and guided him down the stairs to safety.

On the second floor lived Mrs. Swan; on the third, John Scully and Andrew Crum and their families; and on the fourth, John O'Neil and his family and Mrs. Eva F. Daly.

MEN TOWED FIVE MILES BY SHARK

This is a story about one shark and 21,000 fish, as well as about the two men that didn't catch the shark.

It's some experience for two fishermen to be towed sideways in a dory for five miles, get lost in the fog and then lose their shark, but that's just the experience reported by John Meads and Francisco Silveira of the schooner William A. Morse, which came into T Wharf today.

Captain Enos reported the fish tale. He said the two sailors were out in the dory, grappling for trawls, with which a big school of sharks had been interfering. Several bushel of them were lost.

Silveira was hauling in on the line, when suddenly it became taught. He let go, but the line was fastened to the side of the dory. As the shark sped through the water the dory listed and they were in peril of being capsized, but the frail craft righted and was rapidly yawed sideways through the water.

Captain Enos saw their peril and followed in the schooner, but the shark was faster than the larger vessel. The chase continued for five miles until the fishermen were lost in the fog. They were becoming alarmed when suddenly the line slacked, and on pulling in they found that the big fish that had towed them had been so powerful that it had straightened out the prongs of the grappling hook and escaped.

NOON RALLIES DRAW CROWDS FOR THE RIVAL CANDIDATES

Noon rallies were addressed today by both the Republican candidates for the nomination for Governor.

Colonel Everett C. Benton addressed an enthusiastic gathering in Faneuil Hall and former Speaker Joseph Walker held forth before the main entrance of the United Shoe Machinery Company in Beverly.

"I am a Republican," said Colonel Benton in Faneuil Hall, "and my father helped organize the Republican party in Vermont. I will support the nominee of the old party, no matter who he is, but I haven't heard any such assurance from my opponent.

"If elected Governor," Colonel Benton declared, "I will take State politics out of business, I'll labor to reduce the rapidly climbing State tax and I'll work upon the possibility of keeping old couples together who apply to the State for aid, instead of separating them as we do now."

Former Speaker Walker in Beverly had a demonstrative audience. The high cost of living and its remedies comprised the full text of Mr. Walker's address. The maintenance of a reasonable protective tariff he believed necessary for keeping wages in this country up and thus not bringing America into competition with the pauper paid labor of Europe and Asia. With good wages and a steady market, the cost of living would not be so high.

AYER IS FINED $15 FOR AUTO SPEEDING

Frederick Ayer, the Lawrence millionaire and father-in-law of William M. Wood, the president of the American Woolen Company, was arraigned in the Lynn District Court today, before Judge Lummus, on a charge of driving his automobile along the Lynn boulevard at a speed of thirty miles an hour. He paid a fine of $15. "Your Honor, I did not think I was speeding very much," Ayer said to the court before the fine was imposed. Ayer's grandson, William M. Wood, Jr., was fined the same amount on the same charge in the Attleboro District Court last week.

51 LABOR MEN FACE DYNAMITE CHARGES

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 23.—Charged with complicity in the so-called "dynamiting conspiracy," fifty-one men, present or former officials of labor unions, must appear for trial before Judge Albert B. Anderson and a jury in the Federal Court of this district on October 1. Indicted under a federal statute forbidding the transportation of explosives on passenger trains, the defendants are alleged to have been concerned in a nation-wide plot to destroy the property of contractors employing nonunion ironworkers, culminating in the explosion in the Los Angeles Times building, which cost twenty-one lives.

FOURTH-ATLANTIC NATIONAL BANK

The Fourth National Bank and the Atlantic National Bank announce their consolidation under the name the Fourth-Atlantic National Bank.

The bank's central location on State street, at the corner of Kilby, with entrances on State and Kilby Streets and Exchange Place, makes it most convenient of access; its capital, $1,500,000, and surplus, $1,000,000, give it adequate strength and the character of its Board of Directors is such as to insure a high quality of service.

Individuals, firms, corporations, societies, organizations, who desire the services of a national bank will do well to consult the officers of the Fourth-Atlantic National Bank.

A System That Weeds Out All But Bargains

That's why we call the Automatic Price Reduction plan "BARGAIN-INSURANCE"

There are two ways in which this "weeding out" is done.

In the first place, the prospect of losses causes us when buying goods to weed out any not underprice. We cannot afford to buy goods at regular prices and then take heavy reductions because they do not sell quickly.

Secondly, when goods are slow-selling the automatic reductions weed out systematically any unsold after 12 days, reducing prices 25%, and then week by week 50% and 75% from first prices until all are sold or given away.

It makes no difference whether failure to sell was due to first price not being low enough, to unseasonable weather, or to any other cause—the result is the same.

TO US AUTOMATIC REDUCTIONS MEAN LOSSES. TO YOU THEY MEAN OPPORTUNITIES FOR SAVINGS. WITNESS THE FOLLOWING:

JORDAN'S LAST DAY OF LIFE

Chester S. Jordan awoke this morning to spend his last day of life before his execution in the death house of the State Prison for the murder of his wife four years ago in their Somerville home.

For his last breakfast he again had cantaloupe. He also called for cereal, eggs, biscuit and coffee.

Jordan has seen his aged parents and his two sisters for the last time, as it was decided since their visit on Saturday that they would break down if they came again for what would be a pre-arranged final farewell. The condemned man may see his brother Elmer once more.

Most of his time today was spent in talking and reading with G. Leonard McNeil, the Christian Science reader who is his spiritual advisor.

Warding Bridges, Deputy Warden Allen, Chaplain Stebbins and the Catholic chaplain, the Rev. M. J. Murphy, were also cheerily greeted when they visited Jordan.

Unless some unforeseen circumstance interferes, the wife slayer will meet his fate in the chair shortly after midnight. He assured all today that he was reconciled and would walk to his death unsupported and as a brave man should. He even seems anxious for the end, though he is the coolest prisoner, under the fearful suspense, that ever occupied a death cell.

GIRL POISONER HELD IN $4,000

LOWELL, Sept. 23.—Pretty sixteen-year-old Gladeus St. Denis, who is charged with attempting to poison her uncle and aunt, appeared today in the local police court.

Owing to her youth and the seriousness of the charge she was not asked to plead. She was, however, held in $4,000 bonds for a hearing on Friday next before the Juvenile Court.

The courtroom was crowded. Soon after the opening Miss St. Denis was brought in by her aunt and matron. She had on her best blue dress, which she had requested her aunt to bring to her in jail. She smiled to some of her friends in the room. She was apparently the most unconcerned person in court.

Superintendent of Police Redmond Welch did not press the charge of poisoning against the girl. She is classed as a juvenile and will be heard in that court. The offence of which she is charged is punishable by twenty years in jail.

It is believed that the girl's mother will ask to have her daughter returned to her and then take her to New Hampshire.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Jordan, her foster parents with whom she has lived at No. 725 School street, do not hold any ill feeling toward the girl whom they have given a good home. They feel that she is in no way responsible for her acts.

Mr. Jordan retained Lawyer Daniel Donahoe as counsel for the young woman. Both Mr. and Mrs. Jordan visited the young prisoner in the detention room at the police station yesterday.

"Gladeus," said the uncle, "why did you do it? Why did you want to poison your aunt and me?"

The only answer was a defiant look and shrug of the shoulders. One explanation of the girl's act is that her folks would not allow her to be on the streets at night.

Mr. and Mrs. Jordan are still weak from the effects of the poison, and Mr. Jordan has not been in a condition to go to work since Thursday, but the couple rode to the station in a car.

MRS. PAT CAMPBELL SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

LONDON, Sept. 23.—Mrs. "Pat" Campbell, the actress, who has been ill for a week, showed slight improvement today. Mrs. Campbell's illness has been diagnosed as peritonitis. Her condition has been so low that straw was placed in the streets about her Kensington square home to deaden the street noises.

10th District
FOR CONGRESS
JOHN J. WALSH

I am pledged to save the Charlestown Navy Yard. I am opposed to its removal. If there must be consolidation of navy yards along the Atlantic coast, let it be at Charlestown, so that steady work may be given to thousands of skilled laborers here.

I am pledged to institute a housecleaning at the Boston Custom House, where practices are tolerated which now throttle the development of this port.

I am determined that the Boston Postoffice, now a village institution, shall be made a first-class metropolitan office. I shall advocate a pension system for all government employees.

I shall seek effective co-operation between the Federal authorities and the Directors of the Port of Boston, to procure speedy preparation of this port for the expansion of trade bound to follow the opening of the Panama Canal.

The district needs an energetic MAN Congressman. My success will be a protest against the domination of our politics by selfish bosses. My opponent affronts the community by refusing, after two years in office, to render an account of his stewardship. He declines to meet me in joint debate on his Congressional record. I asked him to describe his record; the best he could do was to say that "it reflected the record of the Democratic party."

Think of it! My opponent, William F. Murray, cannot point to one single accomplishment.

Is it any wonder that he has refused to take the platform once in his own behalf? I know that he has been instructed by his masters, the bosses, to keep silent in this campaign, and to rely on them and not the people for his nomination, despite his blank Congressional record.

Voters, resent the assumption at the base of such assurance, the assumption that the bosses have control over the minds of free men.

Strike for efficient Congressional representation and political freedom. The time is ripe in this city.

MISS MAY HADLEY, MONTROSE GIRL IN VACATION ROMANCE

Friends of Miss May Hadley, twenty, daughter of Darius Hadley, of Salem street, Montrose, who for fouty years was the sub-master of the Harvard Grammar School in Boston, learned for the first time today that she is to be married as the result of a vacation romance which began with love at first sight on an island camping trip. Next month Miss Hadley is to marry Edward T. Chamberlain, teller of the Security Trust Company, Lynn's biggest bank and the son of well-to-do parents.

Young Chamberlain announced the engagement today when some of his fellow officers of the Lynn bank put it up to him. They noticed the teller looked supremely blissful. They went over. "Say, when did you become engaged?" they asked on a shrewd guess.

Chamberlain smiled again.

"How did you know it?" he asked.

"Since thing, fellows, it's true. I'm going to be married next month."

The romance began two years ago, Chamberlain's friends said, when the teller and Miss Hadley happened to be spending their vacation at different camps on Treadwell Island, off Ipswich. They said it was a case of love at first sight. The wedding is to take place at the home of the bride's father.

Governor Foss Expects Birthday Present Tomorrow

Governor Foss expects to celebrate two important events tomorrow—a victory in the State primaries and his fifty-fourth birthday anniversary. The Governor was born September 24, 1858. Governor Foss said today: "Yes, I'll be fifty-four tomorrow. Guess I am getting old. I expect a little birthday present from the Democratic voters.

Dudley M. Holman, former secretary to Governor Foss and at present a member of the Industrial Accidents Board, which is administering the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act, is forty-nine years old today.

He called on the Governor today and said: "Governor, I notice that you celebrated your birthday anniversary tomorrow. I'm forty-nine today. I beat you to it. I trust that instead of celebrating your birthday alone, you will also have occasion to celebrate a great victory at the Bands of the Democratic voters of the State."

PLACE EMBARGO ON OSCAR WILDE SHAFT

PARIS, Sept. 23.—An embargo has been placed by the authorities on Jacob Epstein's sepulchral monument over the grave of Oscar Wilde in the Pere Lachaise Cemetery. The director of the cemetery states that, in view of the unveiled character of the sphinx-like figure on the monument the matter was laid before the prefect of the Seine, who, as Mayor of Paris, gave instructions that the monument should be veiled until the sculptor consented to make certain alterations.

UNITE FOR FOSS, PLEADS MAYOR

Any Democrat who has the welfare of the party at heart and who desires to assist in the election of Wilson and Marshall should vote for the renomination of Governor Foss tomorrow, said Mayor Fitzgerald at two noon-day rallies for Governor Foss today. He said that the nomination of District Attorney Pelletier would be a handicap to the national ticket and declared that when David I. Walsh was willing to forego his ambition to be Governor, that the county prosecutor ought to retire from the field. He said in part:

"There should be one thought paramount in the mind of every Democrat who votes tomorrow, and that is the success of the party. If he is a real Democrat he wants the party to win because of the principles which it stands for and the consequent good will that will come to the community from the translation of these principles into statutes.

Foss Commands Support.

"It is agreed on every hand that Massachusetts, for the first time in its history since the Civil War, has a chance to cast its vote for a Democratic President and Vice-President. Should this opportunity be neglected? Is there a thinking Democrat who will say that Governor Foss will not be infinitely stronger in Massachusetts on election day than Mr. Pelletier? How could we go through the State arguing for success on the accomplishments of two years of Democratic administration, and yet defeat the man who was the leader during that period of time?

"Is there any Democrat who thinks that Mr. Pelletier and his spoils doctrine could succeed in getting 25,000 Republican votes to come to his standard, and how hopeless would Wilson and Marshall be in Massachusetts when they appeared upon the same platform with Mr. Pelletier as a candidate for Governor, sustaining him as they would be compelled to do in his effort to reach the Governor's chair on the theory that deserving men should be kicked out of office simply on political grounds.

"Wilson and Marshall is a ticket that strongly appeals to the independent Republican voters as well as to men of independent convictions who belong to no party but who have dictated elections for the past fifty years.

Walsh for Party First.

"David I. Walsh made a phenomenal run with Governor Foss last year and when he is willing to abandon his ambitions to succeed to the Governor's chair because he realizes that Governor Foss is thousands of votes stronger than any other Democrat who could be named, why should not Mr. Pelletier and his friends follow Mr. Walsh's example?

"Mr. Pelletier has made a good district attorney; he has yet a year to serve in that position; he is a young man, and has plenty of time, and those people are his best friends who will vote against him tomorrow and support Governor Foss, to the end that this Democratic party may be strengthened and placed in such a position that, in the near future, when Walsh and Pelletier and other men are anxious for gubernatorial honors, the party will be so strongly intrenched in power that their success will be assured."

Alfred G. Vanderbilt inherited $25,000,000 from his father five years ago.

Next month he will come into $25,000,000 more.

In the meantime the first $25,000,000 has earned $10,000,000 by exceptional stewardship.

So, the Vanderbilt heir will sometime come into $60,000,000, plus all it may have earned in the meantime.

Young Master Vanderbilt takes his place with John Nicholas Brown, Jr., "Baby" McLean and the John D. Rockefeller grandchildren as a potential master of millions.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—BIRTH—on September 22, at Cheney's Camp, Wimbledon, Surrey, to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, a son.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 23.—An heir has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt in Surrey, England.

This happy fact was announced in a cablegram from Alfred G. Vanderbilt to Mrs. C. Hazeltine Bassher, mother of Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was Margaret Emerson, daughter of Captain Isaac E. Emerson of Baltimore.

Mrs. Bassher, who was beaming with delight that the child is a boy, said the cablegram is very brief. It states simply that the boy is "fine" and that "mother and child are doing well." The new baby's grandmother added she could only suppose that he came into the world late last night or early this morning.

TELLS TAFT OIL TRUST IS GUILTY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Samuel Untermeyer, counsel for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, laid formal charges before President Taft at the White House today that the Standard Oil Company is flagrantly disregarding the recent decree of dissolution issued by the Supreme Court.

Untermeyer told the President that the Standard Oil Company, while pretending to obey the decree in reality, is laughing at the mandate and pursuing its business in exactly the same way as before the decree was handed down. He produced evidence and requested the President to investigate the matter at once. President Taft promised to take up the matter with the Department of Justice.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Subpoenas were issued today for John D. Archbold, the directing genius of the Standard Oil Company and for all the directors of the old Standard Oil Company of New Jersey to testify in the hearing in the suit brought to prevent three Standard Oil men from taking seats on the board of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Three of the lawyers in the case were absent when today's session began in the law office of Samuel Untermeyer at No. 41 Wall street. Mr. Untermeyer, who is the chief counsel for the Waters-Pierce Company, is in Washington. D. N. Kirby of the Standard Oil's legal forces is in St. Louis and F. N. Judson of the Waters-Pierce attorneys is also in St. Louis.

Mr. Archbold is a passenger on the liner Olympic, which is expected to arrive here Wednesday from Europe. The subpoena will probably be served upon him at the pier.

FUMES OVERCOME 5 PORTLAND FIREMEN

PORTLAND, Sept. 23.—Captain William Parker, Captain John H. Black, Lieutenant Charles Feeney, Hosemen Frank Josephs, and James H. Markley were overcome by gas fumes today in a slight fire in the restaurant of John McDonald on Congress street. Two of the men were unconscious and all more or less exhausted. The firemen were in the cellar, and but for the timely act of Hoseman Frank Josephs, who staggered to the door and notified the firemen in the street, the five men would have died.

CANDIDATES PUT IN LIVELY FINAL DAY

Governor Foss and District Attorney Pelletier, rivals for the Democratic nomination for Governor; Colonel Everett C. Benton and Speaker Joseph Walker, contestants for first place on the Republican ticket and all the more than 1000 candidates who will go before the voters throughout Massachusetts at the primaries tomorrow, began early today their final whirlwind work before the contests at the ballot boxes.

Interest centres in the contest for the heads of the respective tickets and in the legislative contests. Foss and Pelletier will end their work with tours of the Boston wards tonight. At midnight friends of Governor Foss will give him a big reception.

President Maynard of the Democratic City Committee predicted that Foss will carry Boston by 10,000 and he reiterated by an overwhelming majority.

District Attorney Pelletier said:

"From the telegrams received from, and the telephone talks with, prominent Democrats from nearly every section of the State, I feel certain that I am going to win."

John F. McDonald, ex-chairman of the Democratic State Committee, said he felt certain that Pelletier would defeat Governor Foss by a substantial vote. "Pelletier will sweep Boston and carry the State by at least 8,000," he insisted.

David I. Walsh, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-Governor, said:

"The calm, sober judgment of the Democratic voters can be relied upon to renominate Governor Foss overwhelmingly by an emphatic majority."

"The following statement has been issued by District-Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier:

"From the telegrams received from and telephone talks yesterday and today with prominent Democrats in nearly every part of the State I feel certain that I am going to win. The indignation over Mayor Fitzgerald's outrageous action in refusing me the use of public halls or the right to speak on Boston Common has spread throughout the State.

"From various sources I learn that the voters are surprised that Governor Foss has not answered my charges, that he used his official position to advance his private interests.

"From the reliable reports received from all over the State and my personal knowledge of sentiment in Boston I will win by a great majority on Tuesday."

Colonel Benton said today:

"Today, on the eve of the primaries, I feel absolutely satisfied from reports that I have received from every section of the State, that I will be the Republican nominee for Governor at the primaries tomorrow.

POLITICAL NEWS

Congressman "Winnie" Gardner, in the Sixth District, is laughing himself most to death over the fight that Senator Schofield and Lawyer Crowley are putting up for the Democratic nomination. "It's a peach of a scrap," is the way Congressman Gardner puts it. "And I like every minute of it." The two candidates for the Democratic nomination have gone the limit in attacks upon each other.

Governor Wilson comes to town Thursday, following the delightful visit paid Boston by his two attractive daughters. Governor Wilson's Faneuil Hall speech, which under present arrangements will be delivered Friday noon, is expected to be one of the most noteworthy of the campaign.

Representative James D. Burns is having an interesting contest for the Democratic nomination from the Seventeenth Essex District. He has three competitors, but an excellent record to back up his claims for renomination. Burns has given his district two years of creditable service on Beacon Hill.

The Redmond S. Fitzgerald Senatorial campaign in the Eighth District will wind up tomorrow night with a torchlight parade and band concert through Wards 20 and 21. Over 500 will be in line.

Jerry Desmond is making a very earnest fight for the Republican nomination for sheriff even though all of the leaders concede that without other support it is worth little. He is basing his argument for votes on the straight party appeal.

Mayor Fitzgerald never worked harder for any candidate than he is working for Governor Foss. Up to last night he had made thirty-four speeches for the Governor and he is scheduled for nearly as many more today and tomorrow.

Edward P. Clark succeeded in placing $1,500 on the Governor at odds of 3 to 2, but no more Pelletier money is apparently in sight. Clark predicts that the odds on the renomination of the Governor will be 2 to 1 on the Governor.

Joe Maynard placed $200 against $150 on Governor Foss. James E. Cadigan was on the Pelletier end and duplicated the wager before he left the hotel. The money hinges on the result in the State and not in Boston.

The Pelletier supporters claim they will carry seven of the large cities outside of Boston and they claim they will carry Boston also. The seven large cities placed in the Pelletier column at the District Attorney's headquarters are Lawrence, New Bedford, Springfield, Pittsfield, Fall River, Worcester and Cambridge. Chairman Riley declares that Foss will carry every one of these cities.

DORCHESTER ALIVE WITH MANY RALLIES

Dorchester will be alive with politics tonight, the supporters of Governor Foss and the Pelletier forces having rallies scheduled in Ward 20 directly across the street from each other. The Foss rally will be held in the wardroom on Meeting House Hill. The Pelletier rally will be in the hall of the Mather School, directly across the school yard and not fifty yards away. There is keen rivalry as to which rally will draw the bigger crowd. The sixteen candidates for the house of representatives in Ward 20 will hold open air rallies in all parts of the district.

FOSS TO SPEAK IN EVERY WARD

Governor Foss' campaign for renomination closes in Boston tonight with a whirlwind tour of every ward, except 26, at which Governor Foss, David I. Walsh and Mayor Fitzgerald will be the principal speakers. They will address every meeting.

The Foss forces, led by Mayor Fitzgerald, will have an army of 100 speakers on the stump. As a finale of the Foss campaign, there will be a monster reception tendered the Governor in his home district by the residents of Wards 18, 19, 21 and 22. The reception will be held in the Lowell School hall on Centre street, Jamaica Plain, where Governor Foss' neighbors will meet him at midnight. The Foss rallies scheduled for tonight are:

Ward 1—Quincy clubhouse, Day square, East Boston.
Ward 2—Lyceum Hall, Maverick square, East Boston.
Ward 3—Wardroom, corner Bunker Hill and Lexington streets, Charlestown.
Ward 4—Congress Hall, No. 358 Main street, Charlestown.
Ward 5—Hibernian Hall, corner Union and Lawrence streets, Charlestown.
Ward 6—Jefferson clubhouse, Charter street, North End.
Ward 7—Gymnasium, Tyler street, South End.
Ward 8—Ward Room, Blossom street, West End.
Ward 9—Dover and Tremont streets, South End (open air).
Ward 10—Columbus square, Columbus avenue, South End (open air).
Ward 11—Myrtle and Revere streets, Beacon Hill (open air).
Ward 12—Minot Hall, corner Springfield and Washington streets, South End.
Ward 13—Maynard Hall, D street, South Boston.
Ward 14—Flood square, South Boston, (open air).
Ward 15—Corner Dorchester street and Broadway, South Boston (open air).
Ward 16—Corner Mt. Vernon street and Dorchester avenue, Dorchester (open air).
Ward 17—Corner Dudley and Hampden streets, Roxbury (open air).
Ward 18—Wardroom, Court House, Roxbury street, Roxbury.
Ward 19—Wardroom, Elmwood street, Roxbury.
Ward 20—Wardroom, Meeting House Hill, Dorchester.
Ward 21—Grove Hall, Roxbury (open air).
Ward 22—Lowell School Hall, Centre street, Jamaica Plain.
Ward 23—Minton Hall, Forest Hills square.
Ward 24—Franklin Field, Dorchester (open air).
Ward 25—Wardroom, Washington street, Brighton.

GOV. WILSON LEAVES FOR SCRANTON SPEECH

SEAGIRT, N. J., Sept. 23.—Governor Wilson left at 11 o'clock for Scranton, where he will speak at the notification of the Democratic State nominees. Upon his return he will go to Princeton on Tuesday to vote in the Senatorial primaries, and on Wednesday he will leave for Connecticut and Massachusetts for a speaking trip of three days.

KELLOGG'S TOASTED WHEAT BISCUIT

is the dandy breakfast food. Most folks will naturally eat them at first for breakfast, because they are so tasty and can be served like other cereals—with milk or cream, fruit or eggs. But KELLOGG'S BISCUIT are much more than a mere breakfast food.

They can safely be substituted for ordinary bread at any meal—being more nourishing.

They can be used instead of toasted bread at any time—being the toast with the taste.

Every meal time is KELLOGG'S BISCUIT time—whether the meal be called breakfast, lunch, tea, dinner or supper.

Children love these tasty, toasted biscuit, which are a genuine boon to distracted mothers when the kiddies beg for candy or cookies. The taste pleases the children and the whole-wheat biscuit are the best possible food for little nibblers.

Here is a food which always nourishes—a flavor which is always delicious.

They are all cooked and ready to eat, but a minute or two in your oven will make them as crisp as when they left ours.

LAKE GARDA, ITALY

QUIZ DAKOTA DAN ABOUT WRITING

Bigger Quarters Taken to Accommodate Crowds at Russell Hearing.

By CLEMENT L. POLLOCK.

Dignity and decorum were added to the big Russell will trial today when the hearing was transferred to a large trial room in the East Cambridge courthouse, and Court Officer Fred Rhoades was assigned to assist in taking care of the throng that crowds into the room.

The room where the hearing was resumed today is one of the largest and most tastefully furnished in the sprawling red structure. It had been cleaned and new rugs and carpets laid. Those who have been eating their luncheon in the courtroom at the noon recess will be required, hereafter, to find another place to partake of this refreshment.

Volunteer Aid to Dakota.

The partisans who have flocked to this hearing, while being intense in their belief, have observed splendid order in the court. Occasionally there has been some laughter, but the gentlest reminder from Master Dorsey that they were in the Supreme Court has served to restore perfect decorum.

Dakota Dan, looking more like a professional man than a former blacksmith and cowhand, and wearing a pink flower in his coat, walked into court today, his hand filled with mail.

"These are letters from my friends," said the Dakota claimant to half the Russell estate. "They come from all over the country. They serve to keep me in touch with the people who can help me to win my inheritance. They will come and swear that I am Daniel Blake Russell without the payment of a penny. If they thought I was an impostor, you may rest assured that they would not do this."

Dakota Dan is a very cheerful man to have dissipated a small fortune and to have decoyed three years of his time in a fight that so far has gone against him. He has told his friends that he has lost sight of the money in the case and is now fighting for his name—Daniel Blake Russell.

More Writing Exhibits.

Dakota Dan was called to the witness stand at 10.20. Robert Nason, representing the Russell estate, which has recognized Fresno Dan as the rightful heir, cross-examined Dakota Dan.

"Here," began Mr. Nason, "is exhibit No. 8X—did you write that?" The paper was in the form of a note.

Dakota Dan took it, looked it over carefully, and replied:

"It looks like my writing. I used to make a D and an H like that. I wouldn't swear it was my writing, but it looks like it."

Up to date, of all the writing shown to Dakota Dan in this hearing he has refused to swear positively that any of it was his.

"Do you believe it is yours?" asked Mr. Nason.

"I don't know. After I wrote at the writing school some time, I got writing like others.

An envelope was shown to Dakota Dan and he was asked if he wrote the inscription on it. He refused to go further than to say it looked like his.

"I would not swear to this?" he testified, "because Sarah Almy went over these things at home for six months before this case began."

Wrote Upside Down.

Mr. Nason asked Dakota Dan about writing upside down. The witness said that most of his writing in this form was confined to the signing of his name.

"I remember distinctly that once in Omaha I surprised the clerk at a hotel by signing my name without his turning the book around. I wrote it upside down."

"When did you practice upside down writing in school?"

"After I was fifteen or sixteen years old."

"How much time did you practice this kind of writing?"

"I only did it when I was fooling."

"Did you ever see a form like this (a blank check) at College?"

"No, I have no recollection of it."

William ... Russell attended today's hearing, but Fresno Dan, who lives at the Russell house in Melrose, had not appeared up to noon. William ... Russell never pays any attention to Fresno Dan in or about the courtroom. The elder brother never speaks to the accepted younger one. They do not come to court together or depart in each other's company.

"Silent Man in Gray."

This, however, has been characteristic of "the silent man in gray" all his life, according to his story and the stories of the two Dans. All William C. Russell, apparently, wants now is to be let alone. This long drawn-out case is without doubt a great bother to him. He would rather shut himself up in the music of home at Melrose, where the carpets are old and threadbare and the furniture dust-covered, than darg himself to court and listen to a proceeding that is plainly a bore to him.

His testimony on the stand and his attitude in court show plainly that he is not from Missouri, because nobody can show him anything different than his conclusion that Fresno Dan is his brother.

Many new styles to headgear are noticed among the ladies.

TALE OF THE TWO DANS

By C. L. P.

We lived in quiet Melrose town
As many friends have stated
We looked on Brother with a frown
As both of us related.

At school we gathered little lore:
In writing we were fluent;
But many days we left our door
To play the shameless truant.

As years wore on, as years will do,
We got a trifle wiser
And got a job with Dad—achew!
In handling fertilizer.

And then we left the peaceful home,
In manner that was silly;
Because we started forth to roam
A la the Weary Willie.

As prodigals we both came back,
To fall into the breakers:
The lawyers put us on the rack
As scalawags and fakers.

If they our portion would extend,
(Alas, could they abide it!)
We'd have more money in the end
To take it and divide it!

Boston Man Thinks Fresno Dan Worked for Him on Montana Ranch.

Miss Hattie Keith was in court.

Mrs. Coombs was absent.

Mr. Leonard and his daughter of Melrose haven't missed any sessions.

Mr. Nason is the politest lawyer that ever appeared in this court. They say he gets his tan from horseback riding.

Mrs. Almy has a new hat with a black feather.

Santa Claus Coming.

Fresno Dan is a woman hater. That is one characteristic of William C. Russell.

Mr. Scharton today received this letter:

Boston, Sept. 17, 1912.

Dear Sir—The so-called Fresno Dan resembles very much a man who worked for me on my ranch in Montana under the name of Anderson. He was employed during the haying season of 1908, the latter part of July and the first of August. He was one of several hobos who were passing through the country.

Yours truly,
Charles A. Clark.

PELLETIER HEARD IN SOUTH BOSTON

District Attorney Pelletier addressed 250 at a noon day rally held at the Walworth Manufacturing Company's plant, O and East First street, South Boston, today. He hammered away at Mayor Fitzgerald, Martin Lomasney and Governor Foss. He charged that the Mayor and Martin Lomasney had never interceeded with him for a poor man or woman, but the times they called at his office was to ask favors for the rich. He added: "Mayor Fitzgerald is owned body and soul by the Boston Elevated."

AMERICAN MEN DON'T KNOW HOW TO 'FLIRT'

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23.—American men, no matter what the classification, whether millionaires or Pullman car conductors, face the terrible indictment from the lips of Mme. del Garcia de Pastores, a noted singer of Europe, of knowing nothing about flirtation. They are rude, not to say rough and boisterous, according to madame. They lack the finesse of the European gentleman.

CLOTHING STOCK IS DAMAGED BY SMOKE

Fire, starting in the cellar of the clothing store of S. Vorenberg & Co., at Washington and Elm streets, early yesterday morning, caused a heavy damage to the firm's large stock, and entailed a loss of about $1,000 to the building. The principal damage was caused by smoke to the Fall and Winter stock of the firm.

ANOTHER FIRE AT CORNELL.

ITHACA, N. J., Sept 23.—The second big fire to visit Cornell University within a week occurred today when the new Baudy fraternity house was burned with $10,000 loss. Seven men were in the building at the time, but all escaped.

DEATHS

PATRICK GARVAN, former State Senator of Connecticut, is dead in London. He lived in Hartford and was president of a number of business firms, a director of several banks and was interested in several paper mills. He was seventy-six.

THOMAS J. SHANNON of New York, former national commander of the Union Veterans' Legion and in recent years principal examiner in the United States Pension Office, is dead in Washington.

LEON CANDILLOT, the dramatist, is dead in Paris.

PRESIDENT OPENS HYGIENE CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—The Spanish-American war was invaluable to this country for the lessons of sanitation it taught, declared President Taft today when, as honorary president of the fifteenth International Congress of Hygiene and Demography, he formally opened the congress of 3,000 delegates of that body at Continental Memorial Hall. The President was introduced to the delegates and members of the congress by Dr. Henry P. Walcott of Cambridge, Mass., presiding officer of the congress.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

DEMOCRATS ATTENTION!

Pelletier's Republican Record

Supported Edwin U. Curtis, Republican candidate for Mayor, from whom he received appointment as Assistant Superintendent at Marcella Street Home.

CANDIDATE for Judge of Juvenile Court of Boston under Republican Governor, Curtis Guild.

CANDIDATE for Penal Institutions Commissioner under Republican Mayor, Hibbard.

ABANDONED the Democratic party in its fight against Storrow, though he had received its united support for District Attorney two months previous.

APPOINTED three Republicans out of six subordinates in the District Attorney's office.

DISCHARGED "Hughey" Doherty, a young Democrat appointed and trained under Oliver Stevens, after fifteen years' service, and appointed in his place a Republican named Wolf.

The only time Pelletier has appeared on the platform and outside of his own candidacy was to bitterly oppose John B. Moran.

Does this record commend Pelletier to the Democracy of Massachusetts for its highest honor?

CURLEY TELLS WHAT HE'S DONE

Congressman James M. Curley, candidate for renomination in the Twelfth District, defended his record last night at a rally held in Dudley Hall, Ward 17. He reviewed his record and said that throughout the campaign he had never been attacked except by misrepresentation.

A large crowd heard Congressman Curley tell the measures he had presented to the Congress during his first term. Congressman Curley said:

"My resolution providing terms of reciprocity upon food products with the Argentine Republic, and which would destroy the grip of the Beef Trust and reduce the cost of meats to the American people at least five cents per pound, has met with the hearty endorsement of the leading members of the Pan-American Union and by well known publicists of every section of the United States.

Six Years for President.

"My resolution providing for an amendment to Article 2 of the Constitution of the United States, in so far that the term of the President of the United States, together with the Vice-President, shall be six years, and that they shall serve but one term, has met with hearty commendation.

"I was waited upon by the officials of the National German-American Alliance and requested to present a bill liberalizing the immigration laws.

"The famous German scholar, Editor Schweppenlick of Hearst's New York Morgen Journal has declared this measure the best immigration bill presented in the history of American legislation.

"In behalf of the customs inspectors of a number of the country's metropolitan cities, I presented a bill that their compensation shall be $2,200 at the port of New York, and $2,000 at Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans, San Francisco and Chicago.

Voted for Battleship.

"I have been placed in charge of the bill for an international commission to investigate the advance in the cost of living.

"I voted against the leaders of my party upon the policy of an adequate navy, and with the aid of Congressman Sulzer, backed by the AMERICAN, forced an appropriation for one battleship.

"Upon the proposal to establish the spoils system by adopting a seven-year tenure for civil service employes, I opposed my party leaders, and defeated the measure.

"It is not customary for a new member to participate in debate, yet I addressed the House of Representatives upon seven important measures and presided over the body during the consideration of the resolution for the abrogation of the Russian Treaty and debate upon the wool revision bill."

WIFE SUES J. M. POPE, ONCE A HARVARD MAN

RENO, Nev., Sept. 23.—A divorce complaint was filed here by Mrs. Frances Trombly Pope against J. Monroe Taylor Pope, described as a manufacturer of motor machines in Boston. The plaintiff and her young son Harold came here in March. Mrs. Pope charges extreme cruelty, failure to provide and desertion, the latter occurring in 1908.

The Boston directories do not contain the name of J. Monroe Taylor Pope, but the Harvard University Directory gives the name of James Monroe Taylor Pope, with address at No. 39 Cortlandt street, New York, who attended Harvard College from 1889 to 1891, but did not take a degree.

WAKEFIELD MAN, GUILTY OF BIGAMY, GETS YEAR SENTENCE

George H. Haberstock of Wakefield pleaded guilty today before Judge Chase in the Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge to a charge of bigamy, and was sentenced to one year in the House of Correction.

Haberstock was arrested in Medford on August 17. Wife No. 1, who was Elizabeth E. Booth of New Bedford, said he had married her in 1894. Wife No. 2, whom he married last April, Mrs. Josselyn. Josselyn, the lighthouse keeper on Thatcher's Island, was also a bigamist, and was sentenced to a term in State's prison.

IRISH LEAGUERS OFF TO CONCLAVE

Another group of men and women delegates left the South Station for Philadelphia today to attend the two days' national convention of the United Irish League of America, which opens tonight. Over 100 left last night.

President Michael J. Jordan of the Boston branch was full of enthusiasm.

"The outlook for the Home Rule cause is glowing," he said. "We stand united here and across the water. Ireland is to have Home Rule at last, and the work of this convention will be to hasten the day."

Patrick Henry Brogan was prominent among the delegates. He was a special representative of the Mayo Men's Benevolent Association, and he carried proudly a glistening black knotted shillelah from which hung a proud ribbon of green.

"I came from the old country," said Mr. Brogan to the other delegates, "and I'm bringing it on to the big convention we on this side are going to have to help on the cause."

Lv. J. T. Gallagher of Charlestown, P. C. Kelley, M. W. Fitzsimmons and P. F. Costello were among the prominent workers who went.

William Redmond, member of Parliament himself, and brother of the Irish Nationalist leader, will be there to greet the delegates. He arrived Saturday in New York filled with enthusiasm and optimism for the outlook for Home Rule.

PELLETIER TOURS CITY TONIGHT; 12 NOON-DAY RALLIES

Twelve rallies will be held this noon in the interests of District Attorney Pelletier's candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor. He will speak at the Plant shoe factory, Roxbury, and at one or two other rallies, which will include the Walworth Manufacturing Company, Boston Woven Hose & Rubber Company, New England Docks, Mystic Wharf, Charlestown; Fore River shipyards, sugar refinery, A street, South Boston; New England Can factory; Kilby square, city; Roxbury Carpet Company, Simonds street; Boston Belting Company, Elmwood street, Roxbury, and Walker Baker chocolate mills, Dorchester Lower Mills.

Mr. Pelletier's tour tonight will begin in Dewdrop square, Ward 8, and the rallies at which he will speak will be:

7:00—Dewdrop square, Ward 8.
8:00—Canley Hall, Ward 5, Charlestown.
8:20—Bunker Hall, Ward 5, Charlestown.

HERE ARE PRICES PAID BY NEW YORK'S BEST DRESSED MEN

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—M. Le Bargy, the French actor, who is said to be the best dressed man in Paris, declares that he spends a minimum of $6,000 a year for clothes. What do the American best dressers spend? According to a Fifth avenue authority, the most extravagant tailors and haberdashers to their most extravagant customers—who are by no means the wealthiest—charge for, per article, as follows.

Evening suit, $125; morning suit, $85; afternoon suit, $85; dinner suit, $85.

Flannel trousers (imported), $18; waistcoats, $10 to $30; socks, $1 to $3; shoes, $10 to $20; hats, $5 to $30.

Underwear, $5 to $20; shirts, $5 to $25; gloves, $3 to 8; handkerchiefs (per dozen), $12 to $24; overcoats, $75 to $150; top coats, $40 to $75.

Kansas Suffragists Trading Hair Tonic For Bald Men's Votes

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 23.—Feminine vote-chasers of Kansas are swapping hair tonics for votes. The women who are leading the State equal suffrage battle are reaching out for the bald-headed men.

Listen to what Mrs. Lilla Day Monroe, foremost suffragist of Topeka, has to say about it:

"If we can make hair grow on every bald head in Kansas before the 5th day of November we will win this battle for the ballot and for justice."

Mrs. Monroe wants the right to vote. Therefore, she is willing to make and sell hair tonic to the man who is as hairless as a Mexican Poodle. She wants this hairless person's gratitude, for thus she manoeuvres through his gratitude and wins his vote.

"We have tried every plan we could think of to get bald-headed men interested. Now we are going after them with the promise of hair. Yes, HAIR. 'Hair on Hides?' is the slogan. tc

DECIDE ON LOCATION OF NEW PLAYGROUND

The Ward 19 playground, for which the district has been agitating for the past five years, will be located at Tremont, Phillip and Smith street, adjoining the Mission church. Mayor Fitzgerald made this decision today following a hearing in his office. Nearly all of those present favored the site selected.

DENY REQUEST BY PELLETIER

The Board of Election Commissioners today turned down District Attorney Pelletier's request that the names of all voters who ask and receive assistance in voting in Ward 8 because of physical disability, be preserved.

The Commission's letter in part follows:

The board calls your attention to Section 262 of Chapter 590 of the Acts of 1907, which provides: "A voter who declares on oath to the presiding officer . . . that from blindness or other physical disability he is unable to prepare his ballot shall be assisted in the marking thereof by one or two of the election officers, who shall be of such political party, represented among the election officers, as the voter may request; and they shall certify, on the outside of the ballot that it was marked with their assistance, and shall thereafter give no information regarding the same.

LONGEST TERM FOR COMMON DRUNKARD

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Sept. 23.—John Thompson, forty-eight years old, living at No. 16 Chestnut street, was today given the maximum sentence of two years in the workhouse for being a common drunkard, by Judge Tuck. The judge sent the wife, Mrs. Flora Thompson, and his daughter Elizabeth, to the State Hospital for the Insane after hearing testimony from a number of physicians, who stated with other witnesses that the actions of Thompson were one of the reasons for the two women becoming mentally unbalanced.

RED SOX RILEY'S COLUMN PILGRIMS

WITH all of Boston out watching for the Red Sox parade and boosting the Jake Stahl auto fund, there's nothing else in the baseball game today. The Sox come home with the American League pennant at 2:55 o'clock this afternoon—South Station. The battle's over, and it's a dollar to a shoestring that the baseball heroes will have to fight their way through the downtown streets to the Common, where Boston will see that there's a hurrah!

* * *

THIS will be the city's first chance to see its pennant winners—the "greatest team that ever played baseball"—at close range. The crowds that line Summer street will see one of the cleanest, cleverest, huskiest, busiest bands of athletes who ever played the national game or any other sport. It will be Boston's best chance to become acquainted with its Sefore, and Boston will be glad of it when they parade.

* * *

BILL CARRIGAN and "Heinie" Wagner who were sent off on a little scouting expedition to New York to size up the Giants' "inside" play, were expected today to join the returning Red Sox in Boston. The rest of the team left Detroit last night.

* * *

THE pennant winners will not play today, but will begin their last home series tomorrow, when they meet the New York Yankees at Fenway Park. The Sox and Yankees will play four or five games Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the exact number not yet being fixed. After that they will go to Washington, where they will begin a farewell series with the Senators Saturday. From Washington they will visit Philadelphia for the windup series with the Athletics next week. After that comes the world's championship battle.

* * *

THE Yankees have won but one solitary game from the Red Sox this year, so that the Bostonians ought to beat the New Yorkers enough games this week to beat the American League record. Two years ago the Athletics won 102 games. It ought to be simple for Boston to eclipse that this year.

* * *

FENWAY PARK is almost ready for the World's Series. There will be about 35,000 seats for the crowds that see the struggle for the championship. It is believed that all of these seats will be taken at every game. The prices of tickets have not yet been fixed, but it the rates proposed by the Red Sox management prevail, the receipts at each game played in Boston should be considerably more than $60,000. If the series were to end with four straight games, the receipts in New York and Boston might approximate $250,000. Since it seems hardly likely that either team will win four straight, it is agreed that all records of World's Series receipts will be shattered.

* * *

THE rules for the games and the prices to be charged for tickets will be fixed at the meeting of the National Commission, to be held in New York tomorrow.

* * *

IN the meantime—speaking of records—President McAleer expects the games with the Yankees this week to boost his team's figures above all the attendance marks ever made by an American League club. The season's total is understood now to be about 10,000 less than the record.

JOHN QUINN Jr.

Sporting Editor, Boston AMERICAN:

By all means, Boston ought to show Jake Stahl and the Red Sox that Boston appreciates what they have done for the city and for baseball. Jake Stahl is the greatest man in Boston today. Let's show him what we think of him. I am sending you a check for $20 for the fund to give Jake an automobile as the best evidence of our feeling.

I hope that all Boston—and New England, for that matter—will jump in and ride with Jake to the championship of the world. Hope all "the boys" will chip in. Let's make it a rousing affair—everybody in it. Everybody agrees with your idea, and I know that everybody will be eager to contribute to the fund.

Yours truly,
JOHN QUINN, Jr.,
Sheriff of Suffolk County.

FANS AGREE THAT BOSTON OUGHT TO HONOR MANAGER STAHL.

Sheriff John Quinn, Jr., was the "headliner" contributor to today's addition to the Jake Stahl automobile fund.

Sheriff Quinn, who is a great baseball fan" and believes that Boston ought to show its appreciation of what Jake Stahl has done, sent a check for $20 to the sporting editor of the Boston AMERICAN today.

The Sheriff's letter accompanying his check appears in another column, and gives pertinent, convincing reasons why all Boston should join in the Stahl auto fund as the best way of showing "Big Jake" and his team mates what Boston thinks of them.

Sheriff Quinn is a conscientious, consistent baseball "fan," and for years has been an unwavering supporter of both Boston baseball teams. He used to play the game when he was a kid, and it is related of him that the first quarter he ever earned he invested in a bleacher seat so that he could see a "real, big ball game." But that was long ago, when he wore short trousers and no stockings.

A lad might be expected to outgrow those bad habits when he grew up, but John Quinn never did, and he's as baseball mad today as he was when he used to play baseball in the backlots—those days when you used to make your own baseballs and one say old sort of a club for a bat. That was "Kid" Quinn.

The Sheriff is still a kid—in baseball. Now that he's Sheriff of Suffolk county he can't get away to see the ball games, but along about the time the game ought to be over he is at the telephone with a sandwich in one hand and a bunch of inquiries in the other, asking the Boston AMERICAN what the score is.

He's a good fellow, too. He realizes that the unfortunates who happen to be in his charge at Charles Street Jail are human, too, and that they're baseball friends at heart. In fact, Sheriff Quinn is convinced that if they were more baseball mad than they are, they wouldn't be in Charles Street Jail, and that if they get the baseball "bug" well planted in them they'll never be there again. Maybe that's why he circulates the score among the prisoners the minute he finds out how the game ended.

A check for $10 was received from Rose Stahl, who is proud of what "Big Jake" has done, because he has brought new honors to Boston and for what he has done for Stahl. Miss Stahl enclosed the following note:

Sporting Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Please add the enclosed check for $10 to your Jake Stahl auto fund—not only for what he has done for Boston, but also for what he has done for Stahl.

With best wishes to the Red Sox, I am

Very truly yours,
ROSE STAHL.

The Stahl fund is expected to go forward with a jump now that the Red Sox are back in Boston, with the pennant in their possession.

The fund is intended to represent ALL of Boston, and that is why small subscriptions are welcomed to the fund. Invited. If a few men were permitted to complete the fund it would be raised in a day, but that would rob the testimonial of its character as a popular gift.

The danger of collecting small subscriptions, however, is that each person may expect the other fellow to do it. YOU, Mr. Reader, are the man who should send in a subscription at once. In that way the fund will grow quickly; otherwise it will lag.

All over Boston everybody is discussing the Red Sox and the Stahl testimonial. Everybody agrees that Boston ought to honor Jake Stahl; the next thing to do is to subscribe to the fund.

An automobile has been selected as the most suitable testimonial from Boston, since Jake has no machine, notwithstanding some of the men of his team, notably Speaker, Gardner and Hooper are enthusiastic motorists and have their own cars.

"Big Jake"—whom Boston has already named "Jake the Giant Killer"—has been pictured riding around in a machine, since his rise to fame, as the man who made the greatest baseball team in America—but the fact is that the only car that Jake has used is the trolley car.

So Boston will give Jake Stahl an automobile, as Boston's expression of its gratitude to Jake Stahl.

IF—

RED SOX CHAMPIONS GUESTS AT TREMONT

Tomorrow night will be a gala one at the Tremont Theatre when "The Woman Haters' Club" will give the Red Sox a reception. Manager Stahl and the members of the club will occupy all the boxes and between the second and third acts Sailor Fisher will present the club with a handsome silver loving cup appropriately inscribed. The boxes will be beautifully decorated for the occasion.

TWO ELEVENS AT HARVARD

The Harvard varsity football squad will have its first cut this afternoon, when it is divided into a first and a second team. The men who will compose the first team were picked at a meeting of the coaches Saturday night, but their names will not be known until the regular practice today. There will be no practice this morning, as college opens today, and all athletic activity will hereafter have to be confined to afternoon hours.

Although the personnel of the first team is supposed to be a secret, it is not difficult to predict who some of its prominent members will be. The attack will of course be built around Captain Percy Wendell, who for the past two seasons has been one of the strongest line plungers in the game. There are so many fast men for the other back field positions that it is hard to say who will be seen in them regularly.

It is pretty certain, however, that the first team will include Charlie Brickley, T. Hardwick, G. Bettle, Eddie Grunstein, F. J. Bradlee, Tom Frothingham and W. A. Willetts. Brickley was captain of last year's freshman team and probably its best player. Grunstein has shown up well in a broken field during the last two years. The others mentioned have made a good showing in the preliminary practice the past week.

The quarterback position seems now to rest between Barry Gardner, who held it last season after Wigglesworth was hurt, and Mal Logan, quarter on the 1912 eleven last Fall.

The leading candidates for the ends are all in a somewhat doubtful position as to eligibility. L. D. Howard will not return to college. Sam Felton, Frank O'Brien and P. M. Hollister are all first string men, if they can settle their difficulties with the college office. Lingard and Millholland seem the most likely substitutes.

With the approaching national golf championship for women so near at hand it was surprising that more players did not turn out today for the handicap medal play competition open to all women golfers, at the Essex County Club, Manchester-by-the-Sea.

Fifteen players, however, made a late start today and completed a round over this classy links. The Misses Harriet and Margaret Curtis who have each won the women's title were included in the field, as was Miss Fanny C. Osgood, recognized as one of the best players representing Massachusetts.

Mrs. F. W. Batchelder Oakley, Miss Katherine Edgett Winchester, Mrs. W. M. Johnson and several others were noticed on the links, but no scores had been returned up to this writing.

BIG WELCOME TODAY FOR RETURNING RED SOX

diamond stars and that will breathe confidence they are going to clean up those Giants in that little matter to be settled next October.

Boss Jake Stahl and his gallant band are eager to get back home and see this loyal army of fans, too. Word from them on the train, early today is that they broke away from Detroit without bothering with a postponed game so as to be sure and not disappoint the fans.

All the boys will come right through to the South Station and see the program through to the end.

Sox Eager to Be Home.

Larry Gardner will be with the team. He decided to stay in Detroit and accompany the team home rather than take a lonesome journey by himself. He will remain in Boston a day or so for treatment of his injured finger and then go up to his Vermont home. He says he is sure he will be ready for the big games.

Then there are all the other heroes, Speaker, Joe Wood, Collins and—well they're all heroes, so one might as well go right through the lineup and the list of "subs."

Captain Heinie Wagner and Stonewall Bill Carrigan, who came East a few days ago, will both be at the South Station and so team and fans will all be there.

Messrs. W. T. A. Fitzgerald and Fred E. Wright are on their way to Worcester to meet the team and act as an escort.

It is up to you. Every loyal fan must be there. The plans for today's great reception were laid at a sizable mass meeting in the National Theatre yesterday afternoon.

Never in the history of Boston has such a meeting been held. From the time the playhouse, with 4,000 shouting fans, was opened, until the close, the keynote was "Let's greet the Red Sox as they should be."

The great crowd not only filled the theatre, but 3,000 loyal fans stood outside. It was a great meeting, one long to be remembered. It has never had an equal in this city.

Three things were decided upon at the meeting. They were:

That the Red Sox would be met by a band at the South Station today upon their arrival.

That the band would head a procession through Summer, Washington, School and Tremont streets to the bandstand on the Common, where Mayor Fitzgerald will deliver an address of welcome to the returning heroes.

That the Red Sox boys will attend a performance at the Plymouth Theatre tonight as the guests of Fred Wright, the manager.

Remember this. The Red Sox will be met at the train at 4:15 p. m. All those who wish to participate in the parade must be there on time. Get in the parade. There will be thousands in line.

Prominent Men Speak.

Yesterday afternoon the great mass meeting opened at 2:30. The house was packed at 2 o'clock, and the orchestra started to play ten minutes later. Arthur McVey of Dorchester in a short address introduced W. T. A. Fitzgerald, register of deeds, as permanent chairman. The great crowd of 4,000 broke forth into cheers, and gave Mr. Fitzgerald an ovation.

Under his management the show and business meeting was conducted without a hitch.

Among the speakers were Mayor Fitzgerald, District Attorney Pelletier, Sheriff Quinn, "Jack" Manning, the old-time baseball player, James H. Vahey, Dr. Stepano Santuosuosso, John R. McVey, Edward L. Logan and Fred E. Wright.

All speakers were received with enthusiasm. There was not a dull moment in the program.

In his opening address W. T. A. Fitzgerald praised the AMERICAN for its progressive spirit and paid a tribute to the management of the National Theatre and others who have been kind enough to contribute to the reception fund for the Red Sox home-coming.

"Dick" Sears of the AMERICAN won applause with his slides depicting important plays in the big Red Sox games of this season.

Myers has been signed for next season by the Boston Nationals, but will not report until the Spring practice. Myers was at one time a member of the Red Sox squad.

COLLINS GENEROUS

Although the Athletics have suffered from injuries and poor condition of pitchers, Eddie Collins says he doubts if the Athletics could have beaten the Red Sox had his teammates been O. K. all year. Which is very nice of Edward.

Lake Tells Why Red Sox Will Again Beat Giants

Says Jake Stahl Has a Team of World Beaters

By FRED LAKE

This is the story of the first and last game of the Red Sox-Giants 1909 post-season series. Before reviewing the game, I will give my opinion of the members of the present Red Sox team and how they shape up against New York.

Many of the players who took part in the 1909 series will battle in the world series next month and it may be interesting to study their playing and try to find out what bearing it will have on the big title games.

Tris Speaker was the star of the series. He was at bat twenty times and made twelve hits, which gave him an average of .600 per cent for the series. I consider Speaker one of the greatest players that ever graced the diamond.

Speaker was a marvel in 1909, but he is even better today. He is more experienced, bats better, is a whirlwind on the bases and has a knack of hitting 'em out in the pinches.

"Spike" will play a better game in the world's series than he has all season. He always performs when under a great strain.

He will not fold then like Ty Cobb, Hans Wagner and other "headliners" did in former world series. Tris will be as unconcerned in the big series as he would be if he was batting out flies to a gang of kids on the Common.

Outfield Will Shine.

The other two outfielders, I am sure, will also shine. I know more about Hooper than I do about Lewis, for Harry played under me. He did well against New York in 1909, Hooper has not hit as well this year as he did last year but nevertheless he is a remarkable player. When Hooper is off form he has a little something on the average outfielder when he is playing his best. Fielding and throwing are a big asset for any baseball club. There are few base runners scoring from second on a single to right field, while even Ty Cobb is afraid to take any chances with Harry's great "wing" on outfield duties.

I have seen Lewis play a number of times and he has improved much as being a rattling good ball tosser. He is a good fielder, a wonderful thrower and as dangerous a man as there is in the league to have up when a hit means a run or the breaking up of the game. He hits the ball hard and usually on the line. These are the kind of hits that count. The Giants' outfield isn't in it with the Red Sox three gardeners. And then there is Hendricksen, who would be playing regularly if with any other team in the league but Boston.

I will now say a few words about the infield. Jake Stahl, of course, is a far better man than Merkle. The latter may have a shade on Jake when it comes to playing, but Stahl's headwork and experience place him head and shoulders above his rival.

Jake is one of the finest fellows personally that ever played ball. He has the respect of every man on the team and every baseball "fan" in New England. Besides this, he is a grand ball player, and a dangerous hitter. His clouts for extra bases have broken up many a game in the past, and I wouldn't be surprised to see Stahl's big war club play a prominent part in the coming world series.

Steve Yerkes, at second base, has improved wonderfully during the past year. Most experts rank him far below Larry Doyle of the Giants, and, although I admit that Larry is a great player, he hasn't got a whole lot on Steve. Yerkes is one of the timeliest batters on the Red Sox team.

There is no need of my devoting much space to "Heinie" Wagner. He is a better player than Fletcher of New York. It is enough for me to say that he is the brainiest and best shortstop in either league and that if Wagner had not been in the line-up the Red Sox would not have captured the American League flag.

Gardner Is a Star, Too.

At third base the Sox have a star performer in Larry Gardner, whom I consider a better player than Herzog of the Giants, even though the latter is classed among the leading third basemen in the business. Gardner is young, strong and willing and can play ball with the best of them. Keep your eye on Larry in the World's Series and he will show you how that third bag should be played.

The pitchers—well, they are all just great. Joe Wood, Ray Collins and Charley Hall all worked under me. They were stars then. They are wonders now. And then there are "Buck" O'Brien and Hugh Bedient, two of the leading recruit pitchers in the country.

Stahl has a fine staff of coachers. No club in the country has four workers equal to Duffy Lewis, Lady, Nunamaker and Thomas. Carrigan is a wonder—the brains of the battery. He is a fighter through and through and as daring a receiver as there is. Without Bill Carrigan, Gill or Cady up, the Sox pitchers would be severely handicapped. The Giants of 1912 are a powerful aggregation, but I am certain that the Red Sox will triumph as they did in 1909.

How the Sox Won in 1909.

I will now describe how the Red Sox won the fifth game of the 1909 series, thus making it four out of five from the Giants.

The Red Sox outplayed the Giants in every department of the game. My boys were anxious to start for their homes and so went after New York from the drop of the hat. And they made good. The final score was 6 to 4 in our favor.

I used four pitchers before the contest came to a close, Pape, Wolter, Mathews and Hall officiating on the mound. "Ils" Crandall pitched for the Giants. He did well, but was unable to hold the Red Sox in the pinches.

The Giants tried their hardest to win. Matheweon coached the entire New York team from the bench, while Artie Latham pulled off "stuff" which would never have been allowed to go by unnoticed at a regular game in the American League. But we were undisturbed. We knew that we had the Giants' number, and so went in and beat them soundly.

We started after Crandall in the opening inning and scored two runs. We got another tally in the third while we gathered in two more runs in the sixth.

How the Pitchers Worked.

Larry Pape started in the box for the Red Sox, but I was forced to take him out in the second inning with one down, as he was as wild as a hawk. Harry Wolter then went onto the slab, but he, too, was wild and lasted but three and one-third innings. Then came Mathews. He is a southpaw, and was going fine during the two innings that he was in the box. I took him out when McGraw substituted Charley Herzog for Devlin and Snodgrass for McCormick. Both Herzog and Snodgrass are right-handed hitters, and the Giants' leader thought that they would be able to batter down our defense.

I fooled McGraw by taking Mathews out of the box and sending Charley Hall into the fray. It was late in October and I was getting cold. Charley had his speed ball working in great shape and was invincible. Hall allowed but one hit during the four innings that he pitched.

The Giants scored their first run in the second inning off Pape. They scored two more runs on the third while their final run was scored in the fifth chapter. They were powerless after Hall went into the box.

JOHNSON SLIPPING.

Otey Johnson, known a couple of years ago as "Home Run Johnson," has failed in Rochester and it is back to the bushes for him. When Scott Irwin signed him for the Yankees he thought he had unearthed the wonder of the age.

To Teach Baseball In All Countries

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—Harry Davis, ex-captain of the world's champion Athletics, and ex-manager of the Cleveland team, is now in correspondence with baseball men commissioned to engage baseball coaches for foreign countries. Baseball is a flourishing pastime in Australia and is played seriously in many European countries.

"I have information that there are fat jobs waiting for competent baseball coaches in these countries," said Davis. "Baseball is certain to travel around the world. The statement recently made that baseball games among the four corners of the earth would promote world's peace through bringing the nations into closer understanding with each other may not be a dream."

"Run, honey! Run, honey!"

It certainly sounded good to Mike Donlin, the right fielder of the Pittsburgh National League ball team, to hear those words when he came to bat for the first time in the game between the Pirates and the New York Giants.

It was such a very feeble, piping little voice that uttered them, but it was sweetest music to Mike, for it meant that his wife, Mabel Hite, one of the most popular actresses on the American stage, is now on the road to health and strength again after lying in a hospital since June 18, when nothing less than a serious operation held out any hope of saving her life.

Exeter's Captain May Be Out for Season

Oran G. Kirkpatrick, captain and star tackle of the Exeter eleven, is probably out of the game this season. This will put something of a crimp on Exeter's chances for turning out a winning eleven. Kirkpatrick strained his back while throwing the hammer last year.

His injured back has bothered him the entire year. He has not yet returned to school. Kirkpatrick played at left tackle for three years and was considered one of the best schoolboy players in the country.

Practice will begin in earnest this week. From now on the squad will be given hard work daily.

The squad will be divided into eleven and daily scrimmages will be in order.

About 100 candidates have reported for practice thus far. Tomorrow a large number of new candidates will report, including several players of note.

COFFROTH AFTER 'AD' AND 'PACKEY'

By JACK CONWAY.

JIMMY COFFROTH is a determined gentleman. For years James has been looked up to as the king of the American fistic promoters. In his day, Coffroth has pulled off some big fights and the veterans says that he will set a new high water mark for staging important glove contests before the snow melts next Spring.

Coffroth is now making a drastic effort to match Champion Ad Wolgast and Packey McFarland, while he is also dickering for a Jem Driscoll-Johnny Kilbane match and several other bouts between the leading mitt wielders in the business.

The hustling San Francisco promoter believes that he can succeed where others have failed. That is why he is trying to arrange a meeting between Wolgast and McFarland.

* * *

THESE two great boxers have already been matched twice but on each occasion the bout failed to take place. Ad and Packey were matched to box at Milwaukee a year ago last August, and after the promoter had made all arrangements for staging the battle the police authorities stepped in and prevented it.

Billy Gibson, matchmaker of Madison Square Garden, is the latest promoter to have these two men matched and then have the contest fall through. Gibson claims that the reason why he was unable to pull off the scrap was because Wolgast tried to "hold up" his club at the last moment, while the champion asserts that he would be unable to meet Packey on account of an injury he received to one of his arms while cranking his automobile. Personally I believe that it was Tom Jones who halted the go. He realized that McFarland had an excellent opportunity to defeat his protege over the ten-round route, especially when the weight was 135 pounds, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. He, therefore, first announced that Ad had broken one of his arms and then later demanded that Wolgast's end of the purse be increased from $15,000 to $20,000.

* * *

IF McFARLAND and Wolgast meet on the Coast, they will fight twenty rounds to a decision. Of course, there is a big possibility that one of the men would win by a knockout inside of the limit. Wolgast may refuse to clash with Packey on the Coast unless the Chicago wizard agrees to make 133 pounds several hours before the battle. McFarland now weighs close to 138 pounds and experiences difficulty in making even 135 pounds. A matter of a pound or two may prevent two of the greatest battlers the ring has ever produced from ever meeting within a twenty-four-foot ring.

Beauty Secrets of Footlight Favorites

MISS PEGGY DANA.

(One of the beauties in Ziegfel'd's "Follies of 1912" Company.)

By PEGGY DANA.

MOST women admit there is nothing quite so good as massage for keeping the face young, the complexion clear and the skin in good condition.

But the trouble is, who has time to have regular massage treatment? Certainly no girl who has her living to make whether she is on the stage or in an office. Then there is the constant question of expense. A good massage treatment costs from $1 to $3, according to the time and amount and quality of the creams and lotions used. Few of us have that to spend on beauty culture, and so we have to try other and less expensive ways of retaining our looks.

The woman on the stage thinks more of her appearance because it is a real asset. The girl who makes a good, pretty stage picture is sure of a job, and the one who looks ugly must search for another position. That is why even very young actresses begin to take care of their looks, and also why it is worth while finding out how they do it.

Five minutes' daily massage keeps my complexion in good condition, and I am perfectly willing to tell you how I do it, though, after you have found out, you will think it the most simple thing in the world.

To begin with, then, I never use water on my face at all. That is because I have to travel a good deal—or, rather, I did have to before I was in this play—and the water in the different cities, and even in the different hotels, varies so much, and is often so hard and bad for the skin, that I gave up using it on my face. I get a good, soft and almost fluid cold cream and use a very simple lotion that I make myself. This is made of the great, big cucumbers that one can get just now for almost nothing.

Peel th cucumber, being very careful that you get all the green and yellow parts off. Take out the seeds as well, and then mash the pulp up and add a little water, just enough to cover. Put this in a saucepan on the stove, and after it has come to a boil set it back on the stove to simmer until the water is all absorbed. Take the mixture off the stove and strain it through a fine piece of muslin. Add about four times the amount of rose water, or if you want to have a cheaper preparation use just plain boiled water.

This is the foundation of the best bleach and lotion for the face. In Winter time I add a few drops of glycerine, but I prefer it without in Summer, as the glycerine is so sticky.

But I must go back to my treatment. Having cleaned off my face thoroughly, I wash it with this cucumber lotion, using just a little on a dab of cotton. Then I apply some more cream, as I am sure my face is quite clean now, and that all the impurities are washed away.

At almost any drug store you can get a small cup or glass with a rubber ball at the end. They are called suction cups, and they come in almost all sizes. I have them in four sizes, one for my face, one for my neck, one for the eyes and one for the forehead.

Place the cup over that portion of the face that you wish to massage and press the bulb. A very little of the flesh is taken up in the cup. Pass the cup rapidly over the face or neck, and you will have the same sensation as well as the same results as you would get from regular massage. I don't say that hand massage is not better still, but one cannot always get it and next to that my method is the best. I always work my little suction cup upward, no matter on what part of the face I am working. And I am especially careful when I work around the eyes.

Every girl's eyes get tired-looking, no matter what her age is, and there is nothing that annoys the would-be beauty as those dark rings under the eyes. I find that in a few minutes with the cup will make the blood circulate and, of course, that is the cause of the trouble.

Before working on the eye, you should be very careful that the eyelids are covered with cold cream and then of course you must be sure that none of this is allowed to get into the eye. Close the eye and with your smallest cup, which shouldn't be larger than a ten-cent piece, massage very gently over the eyelid and then under it. Work from the inner corner of the eyelid out toward the corner of the eye and then up to the temples.

Anything that will make the blood circulate right under the skin of the face will make the cheeks rosy, and with my treatment there is no need for rouge or any of the other substitutes for natural color that are so easily detectable.

My secret of beauty, I am thankful to say, is not a very tiring one because I have neither time nor patience to waste. Indeed I am short on both. But I do like to look well—who doesn't?

Married Life the Third Year

No. 76—Helen Gets Angry at the Customs Inspectors

By MABEL HERBERT URNER.

"ARE they through now?" asked Helen, as the two customs inspectors walked indifferently away, leaving the open trunks with trays out and everything upset.

"Yes, that's all. Now you straighten things back and lock up the trunks while I pay this duty. Here, I won't need this—put it in with the steamer rugs," and Warren, throwing down his overcoat, hurried off.

Helen put things back as best she could, her cheeks still burning with resentment at the way the inspectors had roughly turned over and pulled everything out. Even her dainty lingerie, that she had packed with such care, had not escaped their ruthless inspection.

Secretly, Helen had no respect for a law that allowed strange men to go through one's most intimate possessions. And, like almost every other woman, she would have evaded or tricked that law if she could. To her it seemed an outrage that you could not bring home a few things for yourself and friends without being subjected to this indignity.

But Warren did not share these views. The customs were for the support of the country, and he had a man's respect for law as law. So he had insisted on her making an accurate list of every article she had bought. And now that there was $23.60 duty to pay she was fiercely indignant.

All over the dock trunks and bags were being opened up and subjected to the same inspection. Under the next letter "D" a woman was excitedly arguing with one of the officers about some lace. And further down, under "S," Mrs. Gorham, whose stateroom had adjoined theirs, was almost crying over some evening gowns, which she had evidently undervalued.

Warren's Maxim

Warren came up now with a porter, who put their baggage on a truck, wheeled it down the dock and loaded it on a cab. Mr. and Mrs. Watters, who had sat at their table, were getting into a taxi just ahead.

"It is curious how close one feels to fellow travellers on board ship and how as soon as they land they become almost strangers again. And now, as Helen bowed and smiled an indifferent goodby to the Watters, she realised how transient such friendships are.

"Well, we got through that pretty easy," commented Warren as they drove off. "The best way is to declare everything. Show 'em you're square and you won't have any trouble."

"But, Warren, I thought those men were HORRID—the way they dragged everything out! And they insisted I had bought that dress over there, just because it had a Paris label!"

"Oh, well they have so many crooked women to deal with they've got to be careful. Women are always smuggling things in. They're a lot worse than men."

"But I can never see why you shouldn't be allowed to bring in what you want for your own use," declared Helen.

"Of course, you can't. You women are all alike—there's not one of you that wouldn't smuggle if you got the chance."

Helen flushed, and adroitly changed the subject.

"Oh, dear, do you realise we'll be home in just a few minutes? Look, don't the streets seem strange? Oh, I feel we've been away for years!"

The cab stopped now at a crowded crossing, and Warren beckoned to a newsboy on the corner.

"Let's see what the papers look like," as he opened one and threw another into Helen's lap.

She glanced over the headings of the various graft and scandal cases that had developed since they left. Then, noting that so emphasises a few months' absence as the unfamiliar names in the newspaper headings. Warren had turned to the stock reports.

Nearing Home

"Hub, pretty strong market. Steel's up—Union Pacific, too. Election doesn't seem to have affected things much."

But Helen was not interested to read. In a few moments they would be home—and that evening they would go for Winifred. She had telephoned to Warren's mother from the dock the moment they landed. Winifred was well, but Mrs. Curtis had insisted that they should not come for her till evening, so that Helen might have time to rest and get unpacked.

"They put things through in a hurry here. Takes a trip to London to make you appreciate that."

"Oh, dear, I can't realise that we're almost home! I wonder how the apartment will look."

"Very much the same as we left it, I should say."

"Yes, I know; but nothing ever looks quite the same."

At last they drew up. Helen jumped out without waiting for Warren to help her and ran up the steps with her heart ahead. There was a new elevator boy—she missed the freckle-wreathed smile of the old one.

"Six dollars is a mighty stiff price for that cab," grumbled Warren as he joined her in the hall while the janitor brought in their baggage.

"Why, you didn't have to pay that!" in dismay.

"Oh, those cabmen from the docks always soak you. Regular hold-up game. But there's no use kicking—if you want your baggage brought up with you that's your only way."

Home at Last

"Oh, Delia, I was so afraid you wouldn't get my letter in time," was Helen's first greeting.

"Oh, yes, ma'am; it came Thursday, I got here yesterday morning."

Helen was gazing around the sitting room. How unfamiliarly familiar it looked! Then she went from one room to another. Everything was just the same and yet curiously different.

Warren was looking over the pile of mail on the sitting room table. He threw out some letters addressed to her and glanced hurriedly over the others. Then he went to the 'phone and called up the office.

"That's what you heard me say, wasn't it? Think I'm going to hang around here all morning?" He was unstrapping his trunk now. "Where'd you put that bundle of papers—the ones I had out on the steamer? Want to take them down with me."

Helen found the papers and saw him off with a curious dread of being left alone.

There is usually a "let down" with the home-coming from any trip. The excitement and interest of getting ready for a journey is very different from the more or less depressing effect of unpacking afterwards. And now Helen faced this day of "getting straightened out" and "putting things away" with a certain shrinking dread.

As she unpacked her trunk, every article recalled some incident of the trip. This was a veil she had bought at one of the big Oxford street shops. And here was a bottle of tooth powder from a quaint old chemist's on Fleet street—the address was on the label. Not the dinner cards, theatre programs and souvenirs were the hardest to look over, for each one brought up many memories.

It had been a wonderful trip. It seemed more wonderful now than it had at the time. Why do we always appreciate things more when they have passed? She felt a homesick longing to go back, to live the trip over again, to make more of its possibilities.

Depression

She had spread a newspaper on the floor before her trunk, and now as she laid out some things she happened to see the date—Saturday, June 8, the day they had sailed!

Oh, if she might go back to that morning! If only the trip was still before her! Would they ever go abroad again? Would she ever have another such opportunity? She had glimpsed the great outside world, and it had made her realise in what a tiny corner she lived. Her life and its interests seemed suddenly narrow and purposeless. After all, what had she to look forward to?

She felt now that she wanted to get the trunks unpacked, to put away every evidence of the trip. It would be less hard to take up the old routine when these things were not about.

It was not often that Helen yielded to a spell of depression for such a cause. Her love for Warren had kept every stage of her married life, however unhappy, athrob with interest. But now, somehow, the influences of the trip overshadowed everything else, and for the moment her strongest feeling was that her life was narrow and commonplace, and that the future held nothing but the same monotonous routine.

"We'll want some washing powder and soap right away, ma'am," and Delia, who was getting ready to wash the soiled clothes they had brought back, stood intrudingly in the doorway. "And hadn't you better make out a list of the other things, too?"

"All right, Delia, in just a moment." And with a feeling almost of rebellion, Helen put down some souvenirs of the London trip and went into the kitchen to make out a list of such prosaic necessities as washing powder and soap.

STOMACH SICK, SOUR, UPSET AND FULL OF GAS? PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN

In five minutes! Time it! All Indigestion, Heartburn and Dyspepsia gone and your stomach feels fine.

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate fermented into stubborn lumps; your head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Diapepsin and in five minutes you will wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps the stomach regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if sour food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is astonishing. Please don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

Nature as an Equilibrist

The Destruction of One of Her Most Remarkable Feats in Balancing by Thoughtless Tourists

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

A GREAT natural curiosity has lately been destroyed at Tandil, in the province of Buenos Ayres, Argentina. It was a balanced stone, celebrated under the name of the Rock of Tandil, which nature, in one of her freaks, had poised exactly upon the brow of a precipice. There it had remained for untold centuries, the wonder of the surrounding country, and the pride of the inhabitants of the locality. Its name, in geographical and geological publications, had become famous all over the world. The photographs above show the rock as it formerly was, and the appearance of the place now that the stone has tumbled into the abyss beneath it.

This remarkable boulder of granite weighed 270 tons, and although it was poised so delicately on the brow of the precipice that the pressure of the hand made it oscillate, it is said that the Dictator Rosas once tried in vain to dislodge it with the aid of the united strength of thirty men.

It is believed that its fall was brought about through the wearing away of the granite brow by the action of the dust and fragments of bottles which visitors were continually throwing under the stone in order to see them ground up when it was set in motion. Their thoughtless amusement has resulted in the loss of one of the greatest curiosities of the kind that the world possessed.

Ice Age Trade-mark

Balancing stones occur in all countries which have been subjected to glacial action; that is, where great bodies of ice, in some former age of cold, have been slowly forced over the face of the land, moving down from the nearest mountains and carrying with them whatever movable objects they encountered. But there are very few cases in which the rocks are of so great weight, so remarkable in form and poised in so singular a place and manner as happened with the Rock of Tandil. In some countries it would have been carefully protected by law, as is now done with natural curiosities of all kinds in Germany, and to a large extent in England.

These strange stones are surviving witnesses of some of the most remarkable chapters in the geological history of the earth. As I have said, they are almost invariably evidences of the glacial ages. It is customary to speak of "the age of glaciers" as if there had been but one. In fact there is reason to believe that a number of successive glacial ages have passed over the earth since it has been, so far as its general surface is concerned, in practically its present condition.

Not once, but several times in succession, the ice has advanced in North America, driving life before it toward the South. Many thousands of years have elapsed between the invasions of the ice, and genial periods have intervened during which the ice has retired, and vegetation and animal life have repossessed themselves of the territory from which they had been driven.

The Causes

There are astronomical causes operating to bring about these enormous changes of climate, and they have not ceased; there will be more glacial ages in the future. It is known that in about ten or eleven thousand years from now the Winter of the northern hemisphere will be severe, as at present, when the earth is at the point in its orbit which is nearest to the sun, and when it is at the opposite point three million miles farther from the sun.

This in itself will suffice to cause a decided lowering of the Winter temperatures of the north, but it is not all. When the astronomical calculations with regard to the earth, i. e., its greatest distance from the sun, Summer will occur at its perihelion, or least distance from the sun. At first glance this would seem to be an advantage, since the Summer then will be hotter than at present. But this is more than offset by the fact that the Summer half of the year will be about a week shorter than the Winter half. The reason for this is because when the earth is nearer the sun it travels faster, and consequently gets through that part of its orbit more quickly than through the opposite part.

Taking all things into account, it is believed that when we have a long, cold Winter and a short (though hot) Summer, the accumulation of ice and snow will increase, and, as a result, there will be a cold period, lasting for thousands of years in our hemisphere. Still, the next glacial period, brought about in this way will not be so extreme as some of those that have occurred in the past.

THE ROCK OF TANDIL BEFORE ITS PLUNGE DOWN THE DECLIVITY AND THE DENUDED SITE AFTERWARD.

The Ice Cap

Geology proves that there has been at least one such period of excessive severity, and it is this period which is usually meant by THE glacial age. Its existence, too, can be accounted for by astronomy, for it is known that there are other variations in the movement and position of the earth in its orbit around the sun, which, at long, and somewhat irregular, intervals, produce a period of extreme cold in our hemisphere, when perhaps a half of it is permanently buried by ice.

It may be added that, at the present time, the Southern Hemisphere has a long cold Winter and a short, hot Summer, which may possibly account for the greater prevalence of ice in the far southern seas, but the effect of these changes is less pronounced in that part of the world because, as you will see by glancing at a map of the world, the southern is emphatically an oceanic instead of a land hemisphere, and the ocean is known to exercise a great effect in equalising temperatures. Consequently it is probable the southern lands have never suffered as severely as those of the north from periodic invasions of ice.

Do You Know That—

Two-thirds of the world's total beetroot crop is used for making sugar.

In the State of California the female vote outnumbered the male by over 80,000.

Idria, a small town in Austria, has a feminine fire brigade, who wear uniforms and helmets.

Palms never live more than 250 years. Ivy has been known to live 450 years, chestnut 800, oak 1,600 and yew 2,880 years.

Among the Swiss Alps there are several postoffices at a height of 8,000 feet, and there is one letter box from which four daily collections are made 10,000 feet above the sea level.

A remarkable transformation of a cat's fur by temperature has been reported. A black cat was accidentally shut in the refrigerating chamber of a mail steamer in Sydney harbor, and was not discovered until about thirty-two days later, when the ship was off Aden. The cat was scarcely recognisable, the fur having become long and thick, changing to white on the back. Brought out into the intense heat of the Red Sea, the heavy white coat rapidly fell out and the normal coat was restored.

Benefited Many Who Had Tuberculosis

Those who suffer from Consumption are generally troubled with night sweats, fever, loss of strength and little or no appetite. Fresh air, good food and the proper care of the body are essential to a recovery, but in many cases something more is needed. Eckman's Alterative is a medicine which has been most successful in stopping night sweats, reducing fever and promoting appetite, and many who have used it declare it saved their lives. Investigate what it did in the case:

Correspondence: For four years I was troubled with cough, which gradually became worse. I had night sweats and pains in my chest. I was losing my appetite and had become thin and weak. I could not attend to my household duties. A physician pronounced my case Consumption. Not being satisfied, I was examined by the physicians of the Polyclinic Hospital. They also pronounced the disease Consumption, which was proven later by examination of sputum, and Tuberculosis Bacilli were found. I was ordered to a Consumptive Hospital. My nephew would not allow me to go until I had used Eckman's Alterative. Before I had taken the medicine three weeks, I had marked relief, night sweats ceased, pain in the breast relieved, cough became easier, fever left me and I commenced getting well. My health became normal. I am in excellent health now and have been completely cured for ten years. I strongly recommend it.

(MRS.) MARY WASSON.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Riker-Jaynes stores, Houghton & Dutton Drug Dept., and other leading druggists. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence.

He recognized its mordant fang, and knew that its ravages, though only just begun, would last his lifetime. Nothing could stop them now, nothing, nothing. And he laughed, as the thought went home: laughed at the irony of fate and its inexorableness; laughed at his own defeat and his rearness to a barred Paradise. Oswald loved Edith, loved her yet, with a flame that would take long to quench. Doris loved Oswald and he Doris; and not one of them would ever attain the delights each was so fitted to enjoy. Why shouldn't he laugh? What is left to man but mockery when all goops fail? Disappointment was the universal lot; and it should go meritly with him if he must take his turn at it. But here the strong spirit of the man reasserted itself; it should be but a turn. A man's joys are not bounded by his loves or even by the satisfaction of a perfectly untrammelled mind. Performance makes a world of its own for the capable and the strong. And this was still left to him, He, Orlando Brotherson, despair while his great work lay unfinished! That would be to lay stress on the inevitable pains and fears of commonplace humanity. He was not of that ilk. Intellect was his god; ambition his motive power. What would this casual blight upon his supreme contentment be to him, when with the wings of his aircar spread, he should spurn the earth and soar into the heaven of fame simultaneously with his flight into the open.

He could wait for that hour. He had measured the gulf before him and found it passable. Henceforth no looking back.

Rising, he stood for a moment gazing, with an alert eye now, upon such sections of his car as had not yet been fitted into their places; then he bent forward to his work, and soon the lips which had uttered that sardonic laugh a few minutes before, parted in genter fashion, and song took the place of curses—a ballad of love and fondest truth, that Orlando never knew what he sang. He had the gift and used it.

Would his tones, however, have rung out with quite so mellow a sweetness had he seen the restless figures even then circling his retreat, with eyes darting accusation and arms lifted toward him in wild but impotent threat?

Yes, I think they would; for he knew that the man who thus expressed his helplessness along with his convictions was no nearer the end he had set himself to attain than on the day he first betrayed his suspicions.

The Hut Changes Its Name

THAT night Oswald was taken very ill. For three days his life hung in the balance, then youth and healthy living triumphed over shock and bereavement, and he came slowly back to his sad and crippled existence.

He had been conscious for a week or more of his surroundings, and of his bitter sorrows as well, when one morning he asked Doris whose face it was he had seen bending over him so often during the last week: "Have you a new doctor? A man with white hair and a comforting smile? Or have I dreamed this face? I have had so many fancies this night easily be one of them."

"No, it is not a fancy," was the quiet reply. "Nor is it the face of a doctor. It is that of a friend. One whose heart is bound up in your recovery; one for whom you must live, Mr. Brotherson."

"I don't know him, Doris. It's a strange face to me. And yet, it's not altogether strange. Who is this man and why should he care for me so deeply.

"Because you share one love and one grief. It is Edith's father whom you see at your bedside. He has helped to nurse you since you came down the second time."

"Edith's father! Doris, it cannot be. Edith's father!"

"Yes, Mr. Challoner has been in Derby for the last two weeks. He has only one interest now; to see you well again."

"Why?"

Doris caught the note of pain, if not suspicion, in this query, and smiled as she asked in turn:

"Shall he answer that question himself? He is waiting to come in. Not to talk. You need not fear his talking. He's as quiet as any man I ever saw."

The sick man closed his eyes, and Doris watching, saw the flush rise to his emaciated cheek, then slowly fade away again to a pallor that frightened her. Had she injured where she would heal? Had she pressed too suddenly and too hard on the ever gaping wound in her invalid's breast? She gasped in terror at the thought, then she faintly smiled, for his eyes had opened again and showed a calm determination as he said:

"I should like to see him. I should like him to answer the question I have just put you. I should rest easier and get well faster—or not get well at all."

This latter he half whispered, and Doris, tripping from the room may not have heard it, for her face showed no further shadow as she ushered in Mr. Challoner, and closed the door behind him. She had looked forward to this moment for days. To Oswald, however, it was an unexpected excitement and his voice trembled with something more than physical weakness as he greeted his visitor and thanked him for his attentions.

"Doris says that you have shown me this kindness from the desire you have to see me well again, Mr. Challoner. Is this true?"

"Very true. I cannot emphasize the fact too strongly."

"You must have serious reasons for feeling so—reasons which I do not quite understand. May I ask why you place such value upon a life, which if ever useful to itself or others, has lost and lost forever, the one delight which gave it meaning?"

It was for Mr. Challoner's voice to tremble now, as reaching out his hand, he declared, with unmistakable feeling:

"I have no son. I have no interest left in life, outside this room and the possibilities it contains for me. Your attachment to my daughter has created a bond between us, Mr. Brotherson, which I sincerely hope to see recognized by you."

Startled and deeply moved, the young man stretched out a shaking hand toward his visitor, with the feeble but exulting cry:

"Then you do not blame me for her wretched and mysterious death? You hold me guiltless of the misery which nerved her despairing arm?"

"Quite guiltless."

"Thank God!" fell from the sick man's lips, and then there was a silence during which their two hands met.

It was some minutes before either spoke, and then it was Oswald, who said:

"I must confide to you certain facts. I honored your daughter and realized her position fully. Our plight was never made in words, nor should I have presumed to advance any claim to her hand if I had not made good my expectations, Mr. Challoner. I meant to win both her regard and yours by acts, not words. I felt that I had a great deal to do, and I was prepared to work and wait. I loved her."

He turned away his head, and the silence which filled up the gap united those two hearts as the old and young are seldom united.

But when a little later Mr. Challoner rejoined Doris, in her little sitting room, he nevertheless showed a perplexity she had hoped to see removed by this understanding with the younger Brotherson.

The cause became apparent as soon as he spoke.

"These brothers hold by each other," said he. "Oswold will hear nothing against Orlando. He says that he has redeemed his fault. He does not even protest that his brother's word is to be believed in this matter. He does not seem to think that necessary. He evidently regards Orlando's personality as speaking as truly and satisfactorily for itself as his own does. And I dared not undeceive him."

"He does not know all our reasons for distrust. He has heard nothing about the poor washerwoman."

"No, and he must not—not for weeks. He has borne all that he can."

"His confidence in his elder brother is sublime. I do not share it; but I cannot help but respect him for it."

It was warmly said, and Mr. Challoner could not forbear casting an anxious look at her unturned face. What he saw there made him turn away with a sigh.

To Be Continued Tommorow.

The Shady Nook

PROGRESSING favorably was the heat wave, sending the mercury soaring higher every day. Even the dogs had not sufficient energy to bark, nor the swordfish to fence.

The conductor hardly knew how to remain awake, but he was keeping his eye upon the boy who, for a solid dollar, had trotted gayly along beside the car.

Thinking the lad's conduct somewhat strange, the conductor waited until the car stopped and then ventured to make a remark.

"Ain't it hot enough for you, old chap?" he queried sarcastically. "Wot d'yer want to run like that for?"

"Oo-oo!" gasped the boy, expeling what little breath remained in his spent frame. "Tot enough?" In course I am! That's why I'm keeping alongside o' you. On the off-side of your car is the only place where I can find any shade."

He Knew His Figures

THE school teacher was still young enough to have enthusiasm in his work. He had spent three solid hours trying to drill some simple arithmetic into the thick heads of his pupils.

And now he was to reap his reward.

"Listen to me carefully, children," he began. "Which would you rather have—three bags with two apples in each or two bags with three apples in each?"

He paused hopefully; but almost at once rose a voice from the back of the room:

"Three bags with two appies in each, sir," said the smart lad.

The teacher looked at him in surprise. "Why would you choose three, Johnny?" he asked.

"Because there'd be one more bag to bust, sir!" replied the promising youth.

Family Manners

Mrs. Timton—We treat our cook just like one of the family.

Mrs. Tomtim—We don't; we don't dare. We are polite to our cook.

An Early Autumn Fashion

The long semi-fitting coat has a collar of brown Holland, with broad revers, over which is put a second collar of linen cloth with slashed revers. It is fastened down with a stitched band of brown Holland trimmed with two buttons. The three-quarter length sleeves are finished with small pointed cuffs of the same material.

A Sleeping Beauty.

Little Boy—Mamma, what's my book about?

Mamma—It is called "The Sleeping Beauty," and is about a girl who slept, and slept, and slept, and nobody could could wake her."

Little Boy—Was she a servant girl?

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

SOME thirty years ago, when the Lysander John Appletons lived on a farm, the livestock was increased by the arrival of a weak, wabbly-legged calf. It was so weak that it was threatened with starvation.

Lysander John gave the calf to his wife. Under her care it thrived, and the wabbly legs grew firm and strong. A few months later he sold it for $40.

"It is your money," he said to his wife, "but I will keep it and you can draw on me as you want it."

She began drawing on her calf money the same Spring.

"I want $20 for a silk dress," she said. "You know you owe me for the calf, so you just charge it to that."

Lysander John gave her the money and was much pleased with himself. "It is better," he argued, "than if she had it all at once to blow in."

A few weeks later she blew $9 for a parasol to keep an account with a woman.

For her hasp; a few days later she drew $7 for a silk shawl and then she began to lose count.

Lysander John has figures to prove that up to date he has paid her $7,321 calf money, and she, being a woman, claims there is money still coming to her.

If he dares to remonstrate with her for any extravagance, he is met with the question: Wasn't it her calf?

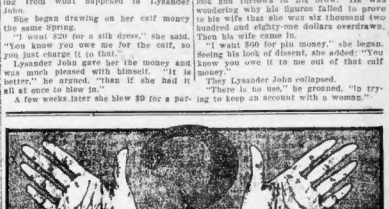
If he suggests mildly that there should be something laid aside for the future, she answers very complacently, "Well, there's my calf money. We can always fall back on that."

Lysander John chewed the end of a stubby pencil last night with a perplexed look and furrows in his brow. He was wondering why his figures failed to prove to his wife that she was six thousand two hundred and eighty-one dollars overdrawn. Then his wife came in.

"I want $60 for pin money," she began. Seeing his look of dissent, she added: "You know you owe it to me out of that calf money."

They Lysander John collapsed.

"There is no use," he groaned, "in trying to keep an account with a woman."



What Women Want Such Hands?

None! And very few have such rough, red wrists, such puckered palms, such frayed fingers.

For now New England women use Welcome Laundry Soap instead of the ordinary kind.

And now their hands are smooth and white, because Welcome Soap contains just enough borax, the valuable ingredient that, blended perfectly in Welcome Soap, softens the water and is good for the hands. Welcome washes fast and thoroughly. Safe for the daintiest fabrics.

This is why there is more Welcome used in New England, twice over, than any other. Your grocer sells it. A big cake, 5 cents.

The Guarantee

Your grocer will give your money back if you can find a better laundry soap. Our great reputation and the priceless good will of hundreds of thousands of users are at stake in each cake.

CLEAN YOUR LIVER AND 30 FEET OF BOWELS WITH "SYRUP OF FIGS"

More effective than calomel, castor oil or salts; gently cleanses the stomach, liver and bowels without nausea or griping. Children dearly love it.

You know when your liver is bad, when your bowels are sluggish. You feel a certain dullness and depression, perhaps the approach of a headache, your stomach gets sour and full of gas, tongue coated, breath foul, or you have indigestion. You say, "I am bilious or constipated, and I must take something tonight."

Most people shrink from a physic—they think of castor oil, calomel, salts or cathartic pills.

It's different with Syrup of Figs. Its effect is as that of fruit; of eating coarse food; of exercise. Take a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs tonight and you won't realize you have taken anything until morning, when all the clogged up waste matter, sour bile and constipation poisons move on and out of your system without gripe, nausea or weakness. Nothing else cleanses and regulates your sour, disordered stomach, torpid liver and thirty feet of waste-clogged bowels like gentle, effective Syrup of Figs. Don't think you are drugging yourself. Being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics, it cannot cause injury.

If your child is cross, sick and feverish, or its little stomach sour, tongue coated, give Syrup of Figs at once. It's really all that is needed to make children well and happy again. They dearly love its pleasant taste.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and look on the label for the name—California Fig Syrup Company. That, and that only, is the genuine. Refuse any other fig syrup substitute with contempt.

HAIR STOPS FALLING, DANDRUFF DISAPPEARS---25 CENT "DANDERINE"

Save your Hair! Beautify it! Invigorate your scalp! Dandderine grows hair and we can prove it.

Try as you will, after an application of Dandderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you will actually see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Dandderine now will immediately double the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Dandderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Dandderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove to yourself tonight—now—that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE STREET, Sept. 23.—Midday—The Boston market was active at the opening and with prices ranging higher. Afterward trading narrowed, but the tone remained strong. In early transactions Amalgamated sold at a new high for the year, and East Butte advanced to the highest level it has attained in three years. Pond Creek was another issue to attain a new high level.

Among stocks to show gains during the first hour were United Fruit, which sold two points higher; Indiana, U. S. Smelting, Shannon, Swift & Co., Utah Consolidated, Calumet & Hecla and Franklin. There was little doing in Butte & Superior at the start, and it receded a shade later.

A London cablegram to the Boston News Bureau says: "Of the South African gold offered in the open market £500,000 was taken for America at the minimum mint price of 77s 9d. A New York dispatch says the National City Bank has engaged $1,500,000 in gold in London for New York.

New York banks lost $296,000 to the subtreasury on Saturday and have lost $1,220,000 since Friday.

A greatly increased demand from Europe was reported in the copper market this morning. Prices advanced 1-8c in London. Apparently, Domestic demand is said to have been moderate, but there is talk of a speedy advance in the price of the metal. It is still selling at 17¾ cents a pound.

Profit Taking in New York.

There was profit taking in the New York market. It began with the London decline and quite a number of stocks made fractional gains at the start. The realizing was so general, however, that the upward movement which began last week was halted. In early price movements Reading and Union Pacific led. Among the gains were Steel common ¼, Erie common ¼, B. & O. ¼, Lehigh Valley ¼, Missouri Pacific ¼, Canadian Pacific ¼, Southern Pacific ⅛, and Southern Railway ⅛.

Atchison, Pennsylvania and Amalgamated were unchanged. At the end of twenty minutes a stronger tone had developed. The Curb was steady.

Americans in London were firm. Canadian Pacific there was quiet.

Financial News in Brief.

The institutions known in New York as "country banks," are in a better financial position now than they were a year ago, according to the latest reports to the Comptroller of the Currency.

Last week's frost did little damage, apparently, in the corn belt and the greatest crop ever raised in New England is assured.

It is estimated that railroads in this country need $8,000,000,000 or more for improvements and extensions. That is almost as much as the estimated value of the prospective crops of this year are valued.

The most recent car supply statement says that on September 12 there was a car shortage of 8,620 cars.

Frederick Dixon, financial correspondent of Hearst newspapers, says that Paris is watching the New York market partially with skepticism, refusing to believe banking interests would encourage the reviving of speculation just now.

Orders for about 300,000 tons of steel rails for 1913 delivery were placed last week.

A big inquiry in London for gold by American bankers might cause the Bank of England to raise its rate, but the consensus of opinion in Europe is that the United States will call for little foreign gold.

Thompson, Towle & Co. understand that the U. S. Steel Corporation has not over 5 per cent of excess capacity for new orders for a year, in other words that the company's structural steel capacity is 95 per cent, sold up for a year.

You will get detailed information when this blank is received. Don't Delay! Send it Now! not debar anyone.

RULES OF THE CONTEST
Read Carefully—Then Enroll

THE CONTEST—The Boston AMERICAN'S $40,000 Contest is a subscription and voting competition open to every man, woman and child in New England, irrespective of age, except employes of the AMERICAN and their families. Forty thousand dollars in Cash and Prizes will be awarded. The contest opens today and ends February 28.

THE CANDIDATES—Every man, woman or child who is a legal resident of New England is eligible to compete. Participation in any previous AMERICAN contest does not debar anyone.

THE ENROLLMENT—Each candidate must be regularly enrolled from his or her permanent address on the ENROLLMENT BALLOT provided for that purpose, which appears daily in the AMERICAN.

The first Enrollment Ballot received before Sunday, September 29, will count for 800 votes. Only the FIRST ENROLLMENT will count for a vote credit.

THE VOTE COUPONS—Vote Coupons from the daily or Sunday AMERICAN will count. One vote coupon from the Coupon Page of the AMERICAN (daily and Sunday) during the life of this contest. Each vote coupon in the daily AMERICAN will be good for 5 votes. Each vote coupon in the Sunday AMERICAN will be good for 25 votes.

Each vote coupon will be good for two weeks from the date printed in the AMERICAN and valueless if received after two weeks.

Vote coupons should be tied together in bundles of 100, keeping the 5-vote coupons separate from the 25-vote coupons. All contestants are requested to use a rubber stamp containing contestant's name and address and district number. Only the top three or four coupons in each bundle of 100 need be stamped. Votes should be sent in one bundle, with name and address and district number and the total number of votes said to contained in package marked on the OUTSIDE of the WRAPPER.

THE SUBSCRIPTION PLAN—A vote credit will be allowed for subscriptions turned in for the Sunday AMERICAN (subscriptions to the daily AMERICAN will not be received).

You do not have to collect subscriptions in advance, but as an evidence of good faith each Sunday AMERICAN subscription turned in must be accompanied by a small cash GUARANTEE payment.

The GUARANTEE payment is required to make the contest absolutely fair and equal to everyone, and as an assurance of good faith of the subscriber in giving the order and of the candidate in turning it in. The GUARANTEE PLAN will help all candidates greatly because only a SMALL AMOUNT in cash is required, and that simply as an evidence of good faith.

This cash guarantee, in each case, will be deposited with the AMERICAN'S Auditing Department as an evidence of good faith on the part of both subscriber and contestant. Every person, upon delivering the AMERICAN to the subscriber, will call and pay for the paper regularly at the regular newsdealer's rate during the term subscribed for. The guarantee received in each case will not be refunded until the subscription until near the time of expiration. All subscribers must begin to pay for the paper regularly with the second week's issue. It is understood by the understanding that the guarantee paid in each case will be deducted from the cost of the LATTER PART of the subscription in copies of the Sunday AMERICAN without charge TO THE AMOUNT of the guarantee (whatever it might be).

DELIVERY OF PAPERS—Each subscription blank will contain a blank space in which subscribers may write the name and address of any newsdealer with whom subscribers may prefer to have deliver the paper.

Just as soon as subscriptions are received at the Contest Department an order will be sent to a newsdealer or newsboy in subscriber's district, giving instructions for immediate delivery of the Sunday AMERICAN for the term subscribed for. The newsdealer will then start delivery of the Sunday AMERICAN and will collect from subscriber each week, except the last week, the LAST END of the subscription covered by the guarantee paid, at which time he will deliver to subscriber the AMERICAN without charge to the value of the guarantee amount paid.

THE WINNERS—The one who receives the largest number of votes, irrespective of districts, will be awarded the capital prize. The ones who receive the largest number of votes in each district will be awarded the prizes as scheduled. In the event of a tie between two contestants who win being tied, similar prizes will be given to each winner so tied.

SPECIAL NOTICE—The AMERICAN will not be responsible for any subscription sent in through the mails, except in form of postoffice money order, express order or certified check, addressed to AMERICAN Contest Department, P. O. Box 3047, Boston, Mass. Cash sent through the mails will be sent at the risk of the person sending it.

Votes cannot be transferred from one contestant to another after receipt of same by the AMERICAN.

No person can win more than one prize.

The AMERICAN reserves the right to amend these rules and conditions from time to time, if it may seem necessary, in order to protect all contestants from any possible contingency which may arise.

The Contest Editor will decide all disputed questions carefully and in good faith, and his decisions shall be final and conclusive.

TRADE EXPERTS 800 STRONG

A dinner at the Copley Plaza at 6 to-night and a reception at 8 will officially open the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce in this city.

Eight hundred delegates are in the city. The registration of delegates went on all day at headquarters in the State suite at the Copley Plaza. During the day there was a continuous informal reception for ladies and gentlemen in the hotel parlors.

Sixteen languages, and every nation of importance in the world, are represented among the delegates.

9. a. m.—Registration of delegates at the Copley-Plaza. Opening of information bureau.

8 p. m. to 10 p. m.—Welcoming reception to delegates and visiting ladies in the ballroom of the Copley-Plaza.

The reception is given by the Boston Chamber of Commerce. Members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will furnish music, under Gustav Strube, and a buffet lunch will be served.

Those in the receiving line will be: Charles Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor; Governor and Mrs. Eugene Foss, Mayor and Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald, President and Mrs. Joseph B. Russell, President and Mme. Louis Canon-Legrand, Executive Chairman and Mrs. George S. Smith, Edward A. Filene, Executive Secretary and Mme. Emile Jottrand, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Storrow, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winsor.

Among those invited to the reception are Ambassador Curtis Guild and Mrs. Guild, Lieutenant-Governor Luce and Mrs. Luce.

Nagel Gives Welcome.

Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock Secretary Nagel, on behalf of the United States, will extend the official greeting to the delegates. The president of the Congress, Louis Canon-Legrand of Brussels, will then make a communication to the congress on the question of a fixed date for Easter, the choice of the calendar, and the regulation of international expositions.

The Max Agt of Berlin will follow with a report on the establishment of an international court of arbitral justice for suits between individuals and foreign States. Other reports will be made on various topics.

The program of the conference has been printed in sixteen languages—Bohemian, Chinese, Dutch, English, French, German, Hungarian, Italian, Japanese, Norwegian, Danish, Polish, Portuguese, Russian, Spanish, Swedish and Turkish. The official language of the congress will be French, though some of the reports will be presented in English and German. The work of the congress will be done at morning and afternoon sessions, leaving the delegates free for the evening.

OPEN LETTER TO PHYSICIANS

To convince more members of the profession on Saturday, May 18th, the San Francisco dailies (Evening Post and Bulletin) contained an invitation to the effect that if four reputable physicians in San Francisco would send us a case of chronic Bright's Disease (patient to be strong enough to call at our office), showing a large amount of albumen and casts, a case in which Digitalis, Nitro Glycerine and Basham's Mixture have failed, we would attempt to restore the patient in sixty days with the albumen and casts reduced one-half or more and patient on the road to recovery. If we fail, we to publish the fact. If we succeed the physician to do as it.

All these cases do not recover, but so many have that we made the above offer.

Bilhorn-Jones Drug Stores are the agents for Fulton's Renal Compound for Bright's Disease. Ask for pamphlet or write to John J. Fulton Co., San Francisco.

GREAT $40,000 CONTEST ON

The great New England race for the Sunday AMERICAN'S $40,000 is on, but it is not too late to enter.

Those who will fill out the Enrollment Ballot today and mail it at once to the Contest Editor will be credited with 800 votes. This is 200 votes less than the number which went to those who came in before yesterday, but this is the only difference.

Do you want $10,000.00 in cash?

This great amount—unprecedented in the history of newspaper contests in New England—will be paid cheerfully to the winner of the Sunday AMERICAN'S voting contest.

Five Other $1,000 Prizes.

In addition, there are five prizes—of $1,000 apiece—for the leading vote-getter in each of five New England districts.

One of these prizes—it may be the ten thousand dollars—is yours if you show pluck and enterprise in this great contest.

The ballot printed regularly in the Sunday paper is worth twenty-five votes to you. The ballot printed regularly in the daily paper will count for five votes.

In addition there are subscription votes. A friend of yours subscribes for the Sunday AMERICAN through you for six months—twenty-six issues—and you are credited with 1,500 votes. For a twelve months' subscription, the credit will be 3,500 votes; for twenty-six months, 7,500 votes.

It means the canvassing of your friends, your associates in shop or office or lodge. It means effort, endurance and enthusiasm, but the capital prize is ten thousand dollars in cold cash.

No "lucky number" wins.

Must Win It in Votes.

That man or woman, boy or girl, carries off the ten thousand dollars who wins it in votes. These votes may be had either in the coupons printed every day or—in larger measure—through subscriptions to the Sunday AMERICAN.

Failing to capture the capital prize of $10,000, it is still possible for those who go into the contest with the right spirit to carry off their district prize of $1,000.

This is the political season, as you can not help but know.

Why not map out a campaign for votes as the politicians plan a contest?

Marshal your captains, lieutenants and followers. Portion out your town or territory among them. They want to see you elected to the $10,000. Enlist their aid. Tell them what it means to you. Perhaps you are one of those who always serve on committees and boards and so on and have never asked for support in your turn. This is your chance!

Not Too Late to Enter.

It is not too late to enter. Today, in fact, is as good a time as any. You have lost only 200 votes of the 1,000 that went automatically to those who came in last week. Two hundred votes is no handicap. A six months' inscription, secured today, puts the 800 votes you now get upon enrollment, starts you in the race with 2,300 votes.

The AMERICAN will be glad to pay the $10,000, and the 1,500 other prizes—including five of $1,000 each—because at the end of a twenty weeks' contest the Sunday AMERICAN will have 100,000 new subscribers. The Sunday AMERICAN will hold these subscribers by making them a member of with the best Sunday newspaper in New England.

Enroll today.

Study the offer in detail as it appears elsewhere in the big advertisements. Then write without delay to the Contest Editor.

Don't stand idle and "calculate" while there is $10,000 to be had for a little "hustle."

Tomorrow Is Primary Election Day—Don't Fail to Go to the Polls and Vote for the Man YOU Think the Best

Readers of the AMERICAN!

Tomorrow is Primary Election Day. Your duty to attend the polls is as great tomorrow as it will be on Election Day in November.

You cannot vote wisely on Election Day if you don't vote wisely on Primary Day, for your choice on Election Day will be limited by what you do on Primary Day.

Republics flourish because in the multitude of counsel there is wisdom. The more who neglect to add their counsel to the affairs of the State, the less wisdom will guide the State.

You know that one of the great evils which is besetting the Republic today is the neglected caucus and primary. The man without any axe to grind and with a pure and disinterested thought for his city, State and country, stays at home on caucus or primary day and allows those who have axes to grind, who have personal interest at stake, and the thoughtless who are influenced by those who have axes to grind and personal interest at stake, to name the candidate for office.

Then on Election Day the disinterested citizen finds that through his neglect he is obliged to choose between candidates, all of whom have been selected by men actuated by motives neither disinterested nor wholly patriotic.

It is the disinterested judgment which alone is the safe judgment. No matter how great the intelligence of the citizen, if he has a special personal interest in the result, if he has an axe to grind, his judgment will be unreliable and unsafe.

Therefore, let us all go to the polls tomorrow, appreciating that the less personal interest each of us have the more important it is for us to be there and add our judgment to the composite judgment of the whole citizenship.

Vote before you go to business if possible, in order that no unexpected contingencies arising later prevent you voting at all.

A Vote Against the Renomination of Governor Foss Is a Vote to Repudiate His Administration and Its Splendid Achievements for the Public Good

Where facts are hurled back and forth during a long campaign or during a long trial in court or any other prolonged discussion, it is always wise to recall to mind, at the close of the discussion what is the real, the dominant, the decisive issue and what that issue involves.

In the Democratic primary contest there is just one issue. That issue is the administration of Governor Foss and it involves the ENDORSEMENT OR THE REPUDIATION OF A SUCCESSFUL DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRATION AND A DEMOCRATIC GOVERNOR. It involves the endorsement or the repudiation of the most important things which occurred in that administration and which that Governor has done.

We may be told that the contest is not against Foss for another man, but we know better. We know that when we vote to refuse a successful Democratic Governor a third term, we are voting to repudiate him and his Democratic administration.

What does that involve in the eyes of the people of Massachusetts and of the nation? But once before in the life time of any man now alive has a Democratic Governor been elected twice in this State.

IT WOULD MEAN A CONFESSION OF INCAPACITY IN THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY TO GOVERN A GREAT STATE.

It would mean an announcement to the people of the Commonwealth and to the people of the whole nation in the midst of a great Presidential campaign that the Democracy of Massachusetts had repudiated what had been done to shorten the hours of labor; to give workingmen a trial by jury; to assure workingmen injured by the perils of their employment of prompt and certain compensation; to permit workingmen to organize in spite of the opposition of powerful corporations; to permit the employes of the protected manufacturers to share somewhat in the benefits of the protective tariff which was being denied them; to soften the hard conditions of life in our prisons; to change our laws so that the eleven thousand five hundred men who went to jail last year, because they couldn't afford to pay a fine may be put on a level with those who are equal or worse transgressors, but have the money to pay their fines; to make Massachusetts the first State to approve the election of the United States Senators by a direct vote of the people; to regulate the loan sharks so that they may not oppress the poor; to regulate the railroads and to bring the Grand Trunk Railroad to Boston, thus bringing in competition with the railroad monopoly which we now unfortunately have here.

THE DEMOCRACY OF MASSACHUSETTS WILL NOT STULTIFY ITSELF SO COMPLETELY AND SHAMEFULLY.

Let us all go to the polls tomorrow and show by the largest possible vote that we know a good Democratic administration and a good Democratic Governor when we see them and that we appreciate the faith when it is kept as well as when it is professed, that we mean what we say in our platforms and that we will not repudiate them when our party is put into power on the strength of them.

Every one knows that the result is already determined. EVEN THOSE WHO HAVE BEEN MOST ACTIVE IN OPPOSITION TO THE GOVERNOR NOW REALIZE THAT THEIR CAUSE IS LOST, but we have the common enemy to face in another month at election and the best way to heal up the wounds of this conflict is to make Governor Foss' majority overwhelming and to show to the State that after all there was more noise than substance in the opposition and that even those who were opposed came at last to understand their mistake.

Let us before all things show by the vote tomorrow that we are not "a party, dissevered, discordant, belligerent."

The Important Questions in This Campaign

The Tariff and Trusts Are of Vital Interest.

The Right of the People to Rule and Social and Industrial Justice Concern All.

Fourth Article Written for the Boston American

By George W. Perkins

As Governor Wilson left New York for a trip through the Central West he is quoted in the papers as saying that the tariff and the trusts are the real issues—meaning, of course, the main issues, the principal issues, the issues that easily take precedence over all other issues before the people.

There is no doubt whatever that the business questions, viz., the tariff and the trust questions, are extremely important issues in this campaign, and from Governor Wilson's remark we have a right to hope that he will make clear to every ordinary citizen just what he, if elected President, would endeavor to do with both of them.

Other Questions in Which Nation Is Deeply Concerned

Important as are the tariff and trust questions, there are other questions in this campaign of vital interest to the people—questions in which the people beyond doubt are deeply concerned; questions on which they want definite information from both the Democratic and the Progressive parties; questions on which they are going to vote in November.

Two of these questions are the right of the people to rule and social and industrial justice.

It will be remembered that Colonel Roosevelt went to the Ohio Constitutional Convention that was being held at Columbus, Ohio, last Spring. He made a speech there that awoke the entire country. It was discussed far and wide by all classes of people. Many and bitter criticisms were passed on the speech, and President Taft especially criticised Mr. Roosevelt's advocacy of the initiative, referendum, etc.

The Ohio Constitutional Convention finished its deliberations and submitted a number of amendments to its Constitution to the voters of Ohio. The vote was taken early this month; the returns are in, and the following are some of the results:

	For.	Against.
Initiative and referendum	301,356	224,831
Welfare of employes	340,511	184,986
Workmen's compensation	310,019	206,949
Conservation	390,566	187,276
Eight-hour day	322,196	224,909
Removal of officials	324,726	181,124
Abolishing contract labor	221,245	296,675
Regulating insurance	309,000	191,398
Regulation of corporations	289,272	207,429

Mind you, this happened in staid old Ohio—one of the most conservative States in the Union, the home State of President Taft, a State made up of all classes of people, the laboring class, the agricultural class, the merchant, the manufacturer, the lawyer, the capitalist—and we see all these people voting overwhelmingly in favor of the questions involving the great, broad principle of the right of the people to rule and for social and industrial justice.

The Progressive Party is the pioneer among national parties in advocating these questions, and is pushing them in this campaign.

Could anything more clearly indicate the trend of public opinion, the rising tide, the demand of the people for a broader participation in the management of their own affairs, than this significant vote at this time by the people of the State of Ohio?

Ohio Proves That the Average Voter Is All Right

An analysis of the votes cast in Ohio on the amendments to the Constitution of that State proves conclusively that the average intelligence of the voters of this country is all right, and, when gathered together in composite form, represents a far higher appreciation of the methods to be adopted right now, in solving our present-day problems, than the intelligence possessed and exhibited right now by many of our so-called leaders of public thought and policy.

Ohio, in this recent vote on these great principles, has pointed the way, and we firmly believe that as Ohio went in September so will go the Union in November.

The Man Who Is Kept Dangling

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IT SOMETIMES happens that a girl accepts a man when he proposes with the undefined and unexpressed determination not to marry him.

She wants the joy of an engagement. She wants to be adored, to be entertained, to be loved. She likes no one better than this man, but doesn't like him as much as she likes the freedom of girlhood.

Then, again, it happens that a girl refuses a man, but does it in such a way that he has hopes of eventually winning her.

Perhaps she intends to accept him eventually. Perhaps she thinks to keep a hold on him till she finds a man who suits her better.

Not a kind thing to say of a girl, but, admitting all their sweetness and attractiveness, there are girls of whom the truth is not kind.

"Despondent," who writes the following letter, seems to be in a class of men whom we will call "Danglers." The girl keeps him dangling around her; what her final intentions are regarding him no one knows.

"I have been keeping company for some time with a girl I dearly love, but she tells me she doesn't want to think of marriage. She keeps corresponding with me in the most friendly terms, and the last time I was invited to call on her I again expressed my love. But she again said she wouldn't think of such a thing, but wanted me for a good friend.

"For some time I have persistently pushed my case, thinking that eventually I would succeed, but am now losing hopes of winning her. I earn $35 per week, and have real estate and a house. I have no bad habits, and am considered quite a looker. The house was bought from my own savings, and without any outside help. The girl knows all this.

"What I don't understand is that she writes such nice letters to me professing friendship. If she really doesn't care for me at all I think it would be better to let me alone entirely."

And that is what she should do.

He would then stand a better chance of forgetting her, and could no longer be classed among those unhappy, tormented men who are known as "Danglers."

"Despondent" should make the girl one more proposal, and tell her when he makes it that it will be the last.

If she refuses, I hope he will be a man of his word, and see that it is the last. A rejection should end their acquaintance, for so long as he dangles around her, though merely as a friend, so long will that most persistent and most tasteless of all growths of love, HOPE, continue to plague him.
